For England Poems Written During Estrang:

Word and Self Estranged in English Texts, 1550-1660 L.E. Semler, 2016-12-05 The essays in Word and Self Estranged in English Texts 1550-1660 consider diverse historical contexts for writing about strangeness. They draw on current practices of reading to present contrasts and analogies within and between various social understandings. In so doing they reveal an interplay of thematic and stylistic modes that tells us a great deal about how and why certain aspects of life and thinking were estranged in sixteenth and seventeenth century thinking. The collection's unique strength is that it makes specific bridges between contemporary perspectives and early modern connotations of strangeness and inhibition. The subjects of these essays are strange to our ways of thinking because of their obvious distance from us in time and culture. And yet curiously far from being entirely alien to these texts, some of the most modern thinking about paradigms, texts, concepts connects with the early modern in unexpected ways. Milton meets the contemporary competent reader, Wittgenstein meets Robert Cawdrey, Shakespeare embraces the teenager, and Marvell matches wits with French mathematician René Thom. Additionally, the early modern texts posit their own others or sites of estrangement: Moorishness, Persian art, even the human body with which they perform their own astonishing maneuvers of estrangement and alignment. In reading Renaissance works from our own time and inviting them to reflect upon our own time, Word and Self Estranged in English Texts 1550-1660 offers a vital reinterpretation of early modern texts.

Johnson, 2016-02-17 The fruit of intensive collaboration among leading international specialists on the literature, religion, and culture of early modern England, this volume examines the relationship between writing and religion in England from 1558, the year of the Elizabethan Settlement, up until the Act of Toleration of 1689. Throughout these studies, religious writing is broadly taken as being communicational in the etymological sense that is, as a medium which played a significant role in the creation or consolidation of communities. Some texts shaped or reinforced one particular kind of religious identity, whereas others fostered communities which cut across the religious borderlines which prevailed in other areas of social interaction. For a number of the scholars writing here, such communal differences correlate with different ways of drawing on the resources of cultural memory. The denominational spectrum covered ranges from several varieties of Dissent through via media Anglicanism to Laudianism and Roman Catholicism, and there are also glances towards heresy and the mid-seventeenth century's new atheism. With respect to the range of different genres examined, the volume spans the gamut from poetry, fictional prose, drama, court masque, sermons, devotional works, theological treatises, confessions of faith, church constitutions, tracts, and letters to history writing and translation. Arranged in roughly chronological order, Writing and Religion in England 1558 1689 presents chapters which explore religious writing within the wider contexts of culture ideas attitudes and law as well as studies which concentrate more on the texts and readerships of particular writers Several contributors embrace an inter arts orientation relating writing to liturgical ceremony painting music and architecture while others opt for a stronger sociological slant explicitly emphasizing the role of women writers and of writers from different sub cultural backgrounds The British Journal of Nursing with which is Incorporated the Nursing Record ... ,1903 English Poetry: Its Principles and Progress Charles Mills Gayley,Clement Calhoun Young,1904 gray's english poems , A Literary History of England Vol. 4 A.
