New Zealand Brad Patterson, Kathryn Patterson, 1998 For many years New Zealand was stereotyped as a sleepy hollow of the South Pacific but more recently it has had an influence in international affairs which belies its size Noted more for its conservatism and stability its green fields and sheep than for its innovation and radicalism this most geographically isolated of English speaking countries took pride in its role as a provider of agricultural produce for Europe

Deliberating in the Real World John Parkinson, 2006-06-15 Deliberative democracy has become the central reference point for democracy theorists over the last decade or so influencing normative frameworks and the ways we conceptualize the workings of democratic societies It has also been linked with a burst of experimentation with new procedures that involve citizens directly in deliberations about public policy But there is a contradiction at the heart of deliberative democracy it seems that it cannot deliver legitimate agreements Deliberative decisions are said to be legitimate when all those subject to them take part in free and equal debate but in complex societies that can never happen Few people can deliberate together at any one time certainly not in any strict sense so how can the results of a deliberative event be legitimate for non participants And why would people with passionately held views sit down and deliberate when there seems little advantage in them doing so This book explores these problems in theory and practice searching for a solution that does not merely dismiss a strict understanding of deliberative democratic criteria It reconsiders the theory of legitimacy and deliberative democracy but goes further by examining cases of deliberation on health policy in the United Kingdom to see what problems emerge in practice and how real political actors deal with them The result is a complete rethink of the institutional limits and possibilities of deliberative democracy one which abandons the search for perfection in any one institution and looks instead to the concept of a multifaceted deliberative system New Zealand Churches Respond to the Covid-19 Protection Framework Miryam Clough,2025-03-01

This book examines the ways in which New Zealand's churches interpreted Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern's Covid 19 Protection Framework which saw unvaccinated New Zealanders excluded from access to many aspects of civil life including church attendance The book considers the socio political factors that contributed to a high degree of compliance with measures that Ardern herself acknowledged created two classes of people in a country that prides itself on being egalitarian and kind It interrogates New Zealand's Covid response from ethical and theological perspectives inviting readers to listen deeply to the voices of 75 clergy and lay people whose contributions illustrate a range of responses to the Covid 19 Protection Framework and highlight that the biblical injunction to love our neighbour is not as simple as it sounds As one contributor commented I did notice that people tended to have different ideas on who we should love at any point in time Were these measures compatible with the gospel How did they impact on already vulnerable disadvantaged or marginalised communities What are the implications of this study for Christian praxis This book will be of interest to churches practical and public theologians and others who are interested in global responses to the pandemic
