Food Rules Hunting Sharing And Tabooing Game In Papua New Guinea:

Food Rules Harriet Whitehead,2000 Presents a radically new picture of the role of social actors in the making of culture

Managing Animals in New Guinea Paul Sillitoe,2004-06-02 Managing Animals in New Guinea analyzes the place of animals in the lives of New Guinea Highlanders Looking at issues of zoological classification hunting of wild animals and management of domesticated ones notably pigs it asks how natural parameters affect people s livelihood strategies and their relations with animals and the wider environment

Evolution of a Taboo Max D. Price,2020-12-18 Pigs are among the most peculiar animals domesticated in the Ancient Near East Their story from domestication to taboo has fascinated historians archaeologists and religious studies scholars for decades Rejecting simple explanations this book adopts an evolutionary approach that relies on zooarchaeology and texts to unravel the cultural significance of swine in the Near East from the Paleolithic to the present day Five major themes are covered The domestication of the pig from wild boars in the Neolithic period the unique roles that pigs developed in agricultural economies before and after the development of complex societies the raising of swine in cities the shifting ritual roles of pigs and the formation and development of the pork taboo in Judaism and later Islam The origins and significance of this taboo have inspired much debate Evolution of a Taboo contends that the well known taboo described in Leviticus evolved over time beginning with conflicts between Israelites and Philistines in the early part of the Iron Age and later was mobilized by Judah s priestly elite in the writing of the Biblical texts Centuries later the pig taboo became a point of contention in the ethno political struggles between Jewish and Greco Roman cultures in the Levant later still between Jews Christians and Muslims Through these conflicts the pig taboo grew in power As this rich account illustrates it came to define the relations between pigs and people in the Near East and beyond up to the present day

Adventures In Eating Helen R. Haines,Clare A. Sammells,2011-05-18 Anthropologists training to do fieldwork in far off unfamiliar places prepare for significant challenges with regard to language customs and other cultural differences However like other travelers to unknown places they are often unprepared to deal with the most basic and necessary requirement food Although there are many books on the anthropology of food Adventures in Eating is the first intended to prepare students for the uncomfortable dining situations they may encounter over the course of their careers Whether sago grubs jungle rats termites or the pungent durian fruit are on the table participating in the act of sharing food can establish relationships vital to anthropologists research practices and knowledge of their host cultures Using their own experiences with unfamiliar and sometimes unappealing food practices and customs the contributors explore such eating moments and how these moments can produce new understandings of culture and the meaning of food beyond the immediate experience of eating it They also address how personal eating experiences and culinary dilemmas can shape the data and methodologies of the discipline The main readership of Adventures in Eating will be students in anthropology and other scholars but the explosion of food media gives the book additional appeal for fans of No Reservations and Bizarre Foods on the Travel Channel

The

Anthropology of Empathy Douglas W. Hollan, C. Jason Throop, 2011-08-01 Exploring the role of empathy in a variety of Pacific societies this book is at the forefront of the latest anthropological research on empathy It presents distinct articulations of many assumptions of contemporary philosophical neurobiological and social scientific treatments of the topic The variations described in this book do not necessarily preclude the possibility of shared existential biological and social influences that give empathy a distinctly human cast but they do provide an important ethnographic lens through which to examine the possibilities and limits of empathy in any given community of practice

The Challenge of Epistemology Christina Toren, João de Pina-Cabral, 2011-10-01 Epistemology poses particular problems for anthropologists whose task it is to understand manifold ways of being human Through their work anthropologists often encounter people whose ideas concerning the nature and foundations of knowledge are at odds with their own Going right to the heart of anthropological theory and method this volume discusses issues that have vexed practicing anthropologists for a long time The authors are by no means in agreement with one another as to where the answers might lie Some are primarily concerned with the clarity and theoretical utility of analytical categories across disciplines others are more inclined to push ethnographic analysis to its limits in an effort to demonstrate what kind of sense it can make All are aware of the much wanted differences that good ethnography can make in explaining the human sciences and philosophy The contributors show a continued commitment to ethnography as a profoundly radical intellectual endeavor that goes to the very roots of inquiry into what it is to be human and to anthropology as a comparative project that should be central to any attempt to understand who we are

Higman, 2011-10-17 Covering 5 000 years of global history How Food Made History traces the changing patterns of food production and consumption that have molded economic and social life and contributed fundamentally to the development of government and complex societies Charts the changing technologies that have increased crop yields enabled the industrial processing and preservation of food and made transportation possible over great distances Considers social attitudes towards food religious prohibitions health and nutrition and the politics of distribution Offers a fresh understanding of world history through the discussion of food

Becoming Sinners Joel Robbins, 2004-04-12 In a world of swift and sweeping cultural transformations few have seen changes as rapid and dramatic as those experienced by the Urapmin of Papua New Guinea in the last four decades A remote people never directly missionized the Urapmin began in the 1960s to send young men to study with Baptist missionaries living among neighboring communities By the late 1970s the Urapmin had undergone a charismatic revival abandoning their traditional religion for a Christianity intensely focused on human sinfulness and driven by a constant sense of millennial expectation Exploring the Christian culture of the Urapmin Joel Robbins shows how its preoccupations provide keys to understanding the nature of cultural change more generally In so doing he offers one of the richest available anthropological accounts of Christianity as a lived religion Theoretically ambitious and engagingly written his book opens a unique perspective on a Melanesian society religious experience and the very nature of rapid cultural change

Relational Models Theory Nick Haslam,2004-09-22 This book offers a critical introduction to contemporary relational models theory and illustrates the ways in which it has illuminated a wide range of interpersonal phenomena and stimulated research on individual psychology collective behavior and cult

Activity, Diet and Social Practice Sarah Schrader,2018-12-05 Day to day activities are important in the development of social identities the establishment of social standing and the communal understanding of societal rules This perspective is broadly referred to as practice theory and relates to the power of an overarching social structure and the individual actors that exist within it Practice theory has made an important contribution to anthropological and archaeological research as these fields are particularly interested in daily life and the importance of these actions This volume argues that practice theory can also be used in a bioarchaeological context through the examination of human skeletal remains and the archaeological context in which they were excavated Bioarchaeology offers a unique perspective on these day to day experiences skeletal tissue is constantly undergoing a process of change and as a living biological system it can adapt to external forces Furthermore bioarchaeological studies are multi scalar and can examine individuals groups or entire populations Using osteological indicators of activity patterns enthesal changes osteoarthritis and dietary isotopes carbon nitrogen as examples this book addresses patterns of everyday life in the ancient past Physical activities and food consumption are actions that are carried out on a daily basis While bioarchaeology does not have the ability to recreate specific day to day activities we can assess broad trends in everyday life The volume illustrates these points using examples from the Ancient Nile Valley Through the examination of over 800 Egyptian and Nubian individuals from five different archaeological sites the research addresses patterns of everyday life as they relate to social inequality agency and practice Beyond osteological indicators of activity and dietary patterns this book also discusses additional methods that can be pursued to draw attention to daily life Lastly this book also highlights the applicability of and potential contribution that practice theory can make to this area of research

Social Zooarchaeology Nerissa Russell,2011-11-14 This is the first book to provide a systematic overview of social zooarchaeology which takes a holistic view of human animal relations in the past Until recently archaeological analysis of faunal evidence has primarily focused on the role of animals in the human diet and subsistence economy This book however argues that animals have always played many more roles in human societies as wealth companions spirit helpers sacrificial victims totems centerpieces of feasts objects of taboos and more These social factors are as significant as taphonomic processes in shaping animal bone assemblages Nerissa Russell uses evidence derived from not only zooarchaeology but also ethnography history and classical studies to suggest the range of human animal relationships and to examine their importance in human society Through exploring the significance of animals to ancient humans this book provides a richer picture of past societies

Health Travels: Cuban Health(care) On and Off the Island Nancy Burke, 2013 This collection of essays challenges static and binary discourses regarding the Cuban healthcare system bringing together papers that paint a nuanced and dynamic picture of the intricacies of Cuban health care as it is represented and experienced both on the island and around the world
