Anthropology and Antihumanism in Imperial Germany Andi Zimmerman,2010-02-15 With the rise of imperialism the centuries old European tradition of humanist scholarship as the key to understanding the world was jeopardized Nowhere was this more true than in nineteenth century Germany It was there Andrew Zimmerman argues that the battle lines of today's culture wars were first drawn when anthropology challenged humanism as a basis for human scientific knowledge Drawing on sources ranging from scientific papers and government correspondence to photographs pamphlets and police reports of freak shows Zimmerman demonstrates how German imperialism opened the door to antihumanism As Germans interacted more frequently with peoples and objects from far flung cultures they were forced to reevaluate not just those peoples but also the construction of German identity itself Anthropologists successfully argued that their discipline addressed these issues more productively and more accessibly than humanistic studies Scholars of anthropology European and intellectual history museum studies the history of science popular culture and colonial studies will welcome this book Encyclopedia

Renaissance humanism to the variety of critical posthumanisms in twenty first century literary and cultural theory

Renaissance Posthumanism reconsiders traditional languages of humanism and the human not by nostalgically enshrining or triumphantly superseding humanisms past but rather by revisiting and interrogating them What if today s critical posthumanisms even as they distance themselves from the iconic representations of the Renaissance are in fact moving ever closer to ideas in works from the fourteenth to the seventeenth century What if the human is at once embedded and embodied in evolving with and de centered amid a weird tangle of animals environments and vital materiality Seeking those patterns of thought and practice contributors to this collection focus on moments wherein Renaissance humanism looks retrospectively like an uncanny contemporary and ally of twenty first century critical posthumanism
