Hensley, 2018-05-17 An examination of the relationship between the Davidic covenant and Abrahamic and Mosaic covenants reflected in the editorial shape and shaping of the Masoretic Psalter Hensley proposes that the editors of the Psalter understood these covenants as a theological unity whose common fulfilment centres on an anticipated royal successor to David To test this hypothesis Hensley examines the Psalter's references and allusions to covenants in light of editorial evidence The book is split into three parts Part I reassesses different kinds of editorial evidence their implications and their utility for discerning editorial intent It also re-evaluates the Qumran Psalms hypothesis championed by Sanders Wilson and others Part II engages in extensive survey work on references and allusions to covenants in the Psalter assessing the extent to which they gravitate around David Hensley traces phraseological and intertextual allusions to covenant promises and obligations providing the first survey of its kind on the subject of covenant in the Psalter

Part III then investigates a strong allusion to the Abrahamic covenantal promises in Ps 72 17 in the context of Book II of the Psalter and the Psalter's fullest echoes of the grace formula Exod 34 6 in Psalm 86 15 103 8 and 145 8 in the contexts of Books III IV and V respectively Hensley shows that rather than the Davidic covenantal promises being democratized the promises and obligations of the pre monarchic covenants are consistently royalized throughout the Psalter and its books depicting the anticipated Davidic figure as a Moses like intercessor and mediator of covenant renewal and the leader of a new song for a new exodus
