Pandora's Hope Bruno Latour, 1999-06-30 A scientist friend asked Bruno Latour point blank Do you believe in reality Taken aback by this strange query Latour offers his meticulous response in Pandora's Hope It is a remarkable argument for understanding the reality of science in practical terms In this book Latour identified by Richard Rorty as the new boite noire of the science worshipers gives us his most philosophically informed book since Science in Action Through case studies of scientists in the Amazon analyzing soil and in Pasteur's lab studying the fermentation of lactic acid he shows us the myriad steps by which events in the material world are transformed into items of scientific knowledge Through many examples in the world of technology we see how the material and human worlds come together and are reciprocally transformed in this process Why Latour asks did the idea of an independent reality free of human interaction emerge in the first place His answer to this question harking back to the debates between Might and Right narrated by Plato points to the real stakes in the so called science wars the perplexed submission of ordinary people before the warring forces of claimants to the ultimate truth      Goal-based Decision Making Stephen Slade, 2013-06-17 This work presents a goal based model of decision making in which the relative priorities of goals drive the decision process a psychological alternative to traditional decision analysis Building on the work of Schank and Abelson the author uses goals as the basis for a model of interpersonal relations which permits decisions to incorporate personal and adopted goals in a uniform manner The theory is modelled on the VOTE computer program which simulates Congressional roll call voting decisions The VOTE program expands traditional decision making and simulation models by providing not only a choice but also a natural language explanation in either English or French It simulates real members of Congress voting on real bills and producing reasonable explanations The program is consistent with much of the descriptive political science literature on Congressional decision making and provides an explicit model of political issues relationships and strategies that converge in voting behavior In developing the VOTE program the author draws on his own practical experience in politics from four presidential campaigns and the White House Given the underlying psychological basis of the program VOTE can be extended to other decision making domains different from politics Another use for the program is to simulate business decisions such as securities analysis as well as mundane decision making such as choosing a college or deciding whether to get a Mohawk haircut America's Gun Wars Donald J.
