development problems today These include European colonialism structural adjustment small size reliance on primary production influence of the United States and moves towards democratisation While Mexico is obviously a much larger country in area economy and population terms it is included in this volume because of its close ties to the other countries in the region through processes such as trade and migration

The Rise Of The New Economic Powers And The Changing Global Landscape Haico Ebberts, 2022-12-19 This book explores the catching up process of a group of large emerging markets the New Economic Powers This process is extremely robust and should be considered as the defining trend of our age resulting in a pivotal change in world economics and politics The outcome is that the West cannot dominate the world as it did in the previous 200 years Today s world is pluralistic and the larger emerging markets are becoming increasingly influential That is the new reality which at times caused and will cause further discomfort and uncertainty in the West In the eight chapters the viewpoints on globalization of nine New Economic Powers are discussed Each chapter is an essential element in understanding the process of globalization and the role the New Economic Powers play in it Essentially their views are guided by a fundamental different look about the role of the market and the government in society compared to what we see in the West The New Economic Powers understand the power of the market to create prosperity but at the same time emphasize the need for government interference This delicate balance is particularly visible with respect to their international trade and investment policies which bring them in conflict with Western countries and multilateral institutions such as the WTO and the IMF The book helps the reader to understand the fundamental choices made by policymakers in the New Economic Powers

Everyday Revolutionaries Irina Carlota Silber, 2011 Silber provides one of the first rubrics for understanding and contextualizing postwar disillusionment drawing on her ethnographic fieldwork and research on immigration to the United States by former insurgents With an eye for gendered experiences she unmasks how community members are asked contradictorily and in different contexts to relinquish their identities as revolutionaries and to develop a new sense of themselves as productive yet marginal postwar citizens via the same participation that fueled their revolutionary action Book Jacket

Machel Study 10-year Strategic Review , 2009 The organisation of this report aims to heighten our understanding of the myriad ways in which armed conflict affects children and how children regard their participation not only in war but in programmes aimed at preventing violence against them and in promoting their recovery and reintegration The central message of this 10 year strategic review is that war violates every right of the child The report thus frames its findings within three categories political and diplomatic actions and responsibilities system wide international policies standards and architectures and prevention and response Borders among Activists Sarah S. Stroup, 2012-04-06 In Borders among Activists Sarah S Stroup challenges the notion that political activism has gone beyond borders and created a global or transnational civil society Instead at the most globally active purportedly cosmopolitan groups in the world international nongovernmental organizations INGOs organizational practices are deeply tied to national environments creating great diversity in the way these groups organize themselves engage in advocacy and deliver services Stroup offers detailed profiles of these varieties of activism in the United States Britain and France These three countries are the most popular bases for INGOs but each provides a very different environment for charitable organizations due to differences in legal regulations political opportunities resources and patterns of social networks Stroup's comparisons of leading American British and French INGOs Care Oxfam Médecins sans Frontières Human Rights Watch Amnesty International and FIDH reveal strong national patterns in INGO practices including advocacy fund raising and professionalization These differences are quite pronounced among INGOs in the humanitarian relief sector and are observable though less marked among human rights INGOs Stroup finds that national origin helps account for variation in the transnational advocacy networks that have received so much attention in international relations For practitioners national origin offers an alternative explanation for the frequently lamented failures of INGOs in the field INGOs are not inherently dysfunctional but instead remain disconnected because of their strong roots in very different national environments Infrastructures for Peace in Sub-Saharan Africa Mediel Hove, Geoff Harris, 2019-06-14 Cultures of violence are characteristic of many countries in sub Saharan Africa and attempts to move towards cultures of peace have often proved difficult and ineffectual And yet the wide variations in levels of violence within and between countries show that it is not inevitable rather it is the result of choices made at individual community and societal levels This book examines the potential of peace infrastructures as vehicles to strengthen and spread progress towards cultures of peace Peace infrastructures vary hugely in sophistication and level The examples examined in this book range from tiny structures which help resolve conflicts between individuals and within community organisations peace committees which serve local communities peace education and peace club programmes in schools mediation mechanisms to prevent election violence and to ministries of peace to coordinate government and non government efforts in peacemaking and peacebuilding The overall finding is that the development of peace infrastructures at all levels has great potential to build cultures of peace 1 It is the only book available which documents the experience and potential of nonviolence in post independence sub Saharan Africa 2 It makes a persuasive case for the development of various peace infrastructures in order to make peace sustainable 3 It explains how strategic planning can be utilised both to bring about change and to institutionalise it The Atlas of World Hunger

Thomas J. Bassett, Alex Winter-Nelson, 2010-05-15 Earlier this year President Obama declared one of his top priorities to be making sure that people are able to get enough to eat. The United States spends about five billion dollars on food aid and related programs each year but still both domestically and internationally millions of people are hungry. In 2006 the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations counted 850 million hungry people worldwide but as food prices soared an additional 100 million or more who were vulnerable succumbed to food insecurity. If hunger were simply a matter of food production no one would go without. There is more than enough food produced annually to provide every living person with a healthy diet yet so many suffer from food shortages, unsafe water and malnutrition every year. That's because hunger is a complex political, economic and ecological phenomenon. The interplay of these forces produces a geography of hunger that Thomas J. Bassett and Alex Winter-Nelson illuminate in this empowering book. The Atlas of World Hunger uses a conceptual framework informed by geography and agricultural economics to present a hunger index that combines food availability, household access and nutritional outcomes into a single tool, one that delivers a fuller understanding of the scope of global hunger, its underlying mechanisms and the ways in which the goals for ending hunger can be achieved. The first depiction of the geography of hunger worldwide, the Atlas will be an important resource for teachers, students and anyone else interested in understanding the geography and causes of hunger. This knowledge, the authors argue, is a critical first step toward eliminating unnecessary suffering in a world of plenty.

Preventing War and Promoting Peace William H. Wiist, Shelley K. White, 2017-12-14 Preventing War and Promoting Peace: A Guide for Health Professionals is an interdisciplinary study of how pervasive militarism creates a propensity for war through the influence of academia, economic policy, the defense industry and the news media. Comprising contributions by academics and practitioners from the fields of public health, medicine, nursing, law, sociology, psychology, political science and peace and conflict studies, as well as representatives from organizations active in war prevention, the book emphasizes the underlying preventable causes of war, particularly militarism, and focuses on the methods health professionals can use to prevent war. Preventing War and Promoting Peace provides hard-hitting facts about the devastating health effects of war and a broad perspective on war and health, presenting a new paradigm for the proactive engagement of health professions in the prevention of war and the promotion of peace.

Violence and Communication Jose Antonio Mingolarra, Carmen Arocena, Rosa Martin Sabaris, 2012 Combining the terms violence and communication is a difficult complex incomplete and perhaps impossible task yet Violence and Communication seeks to demonstrate both generic and particular aspects of the expression and representation of violence In a general sense this expression and representation of violence In a general sense the expression and its consequences are explored in diverse global historical examples of violent events including the Holocaust the genocide in Rwanda and 9 11 as well as in thematic issues such as women and sexuality poverty and inequality and the Internet and violence In a more particular sense the work also addresses terrorist violence in the Basque Country exploring specific topics such as its psychological effects in society and discursive consequences in the print media and on television The book examines the representation of these different forms of violence in both the visual media film television and photography and the printed word newspapers literature and so on In short the work attempts to visualize what have been often non visible forms of violence as well as critically analyze the multiple ways in which violence is represented and communicated
