Future Eaters The Ecological History Of The Australasian Lands And People:

The Future Eaters Tim Flannery, 2002 In this illustrated ecological history acclaimed scientist and historian Flannery follows the environment of the islands through the age of dinosaurs to the age of mammals and the arrival of humans to the European colonizers and industrial society Penetrating gripping and provocative this book combines natural history anthropology and ecology on an epic scale Illustrations A Global History of Indigenous Peoples K. Coates, 2004-10-29 A Global History of Indigenous Peoples examines the history of the indigenous tribal peoples of the world The work spans the period from the pivotal migrations which saw the peopling of the world examines the processes by which tribal peoples established themselves as separate from surplus based and more material societies and considers the impact of the policies of domination and colonization which brought dramatic change to indigenous cultures The book covers both tribal societies affected by the expansion of European empires and those indigenous cultures influenced by the economic and military expansion of non European powers The work concludes with a discussion of contemporary political and legal conflicts between tribal peoples and nation states and the on going effort to sustain indigenous cultures in the face of globalization resource developments and continued threats to tribal lands and societies A History of Australia Mark Peel, Christina Twomey, 2017-12-22 This vivid multi dimensional history considers the key cultural social political and economic events of Australia s history Deftly weaving these issues into the wider global context Mark Peel and Christina Twomey provide an engaging overview of the country s past from its first Indigenous people to the great migrations of recent centuries and to those living within the more anxiously controlled borders of the present day This engaging textbook is an ideal resource for undergraduate students and postgraduate students taking modules or courses on the History of Australia It will also appeal to general readers who are interested in obtaining a thorough overview of the entire history of Australia from the earliest times to the present in one concise volume An Environmental History of the World J. Donald Hughes, 2002-09-26 An Environmental History of the World is a concise history from Ancient to Modern times of the interaction between human societies and the other forms of life that inhabit our planet This original work follows a chronological path through the history of mankind in relationship to ecosystems around the world Each chapter concentrates on a general period in human history which has been characterised by large scale changes in the relationship of human societies to the biosphere and gives three case studies that illustrate the significant patterns occurring at that time Little environmental or historical knowledge is assumed from the reader in this introduction to environmental history Chinese Market Gardening in Australia and New Zealand Joanna Boileau, 2017-07-27 This book offers a fresh perspective on the Chinese diaspora It is about the mobilisation of knowledge across time and space exploring the history of Chinese market gardening in Australia and New Zealand It enlarges our understanding of processes of technological change and human mobility highlighting the mobility of migrants as an essential element in the mobility and adaptation of technologies Truly multidisciplinary Chinese Market Gardening in Australia and New Zealand incorporates elements of economic agricultural social cultural and environmental history along with archaeology to document how Chinese market gardeners from subtropical southern China adapted their horticultural techniques and technologies to novel environments and the demands of European consumers It shows that they made a significant contribution to the economies of Australia and New Zealand developing flexible strategies to cope with the vagaries of climate and changing business and social environments which were often hostile towards Asian immigrants Chinese Market Gardening in Australia and New Zealand will appeal to students and scholars in the fields of the Chinese diaspora in particular the history of the Chinese in Australasia the history of technology horticultural and garden history and environmental history as well as Asian studies more generally La Niña and the Making of Climate Optimism Julia Miller,2019-07-12 This book examines the deep connection Australians have with their climate to understand contemporary views on human induced climate change It is the first study of the Australian relationship with La Niña and it explains how fundamental this relationship is to the climate change debate both locally and globally While unease with the Australian environment was a hallmark of early settler relations with a new continent this book argues that the climate itself quickly became a source of hope and linked to progress Once observed weather patterns coalesced into recognizable cycles of wet and dry years and Australians adopted a belief in the certainty of good seasons It was this optimistic response to climate linked to La Niña that laid the groundwork for this relationship with the Australian environment This book will appeal to scholars and students of the environmental humanities history and science as well as anyone concerned about climate change Beyond Conservation Peter Taylor,2013 After decades of operating off the backfoot and protecting and conserving nature perceived as under threat conservationists are becoming proactive and creative in the face of habitat loss agricultural intensification and climate change Beyond Conservation offers a revolutionary agenda for both managing existing wildlands in Britain and for expanding and connecting such lands Central to this strategy is the imperative to rewild or restore and repair damaged habitat and ecosystems promote existing biodiversity and reintroduce vanished plant and animal species while working to reconcile human needs and livelihoods and the needs of nature Contemporary Archaeology in Theory Robert W. Preucel,Stephen A. Mrozowski,2011-10-04 The second edition of Contemporary Archaeology in Theory The New Pragmatism has been thoroughly updated and revised and features top scholars who redefine the theoretical and political agendas of the field and challenge the usual distinctions between time space processes and people Defines the relevance of archaeology and the social sciences more generally to the modern world Challenges the traditional boundaries between prehistoric and historical archaeologies Discusses how archaeology articulates such contemporary topics and issues as landscape and nature's agency meaning and practice sexuality embodiment and personhood race class and ethnicity materiality memory and historical silence colonialism nationalism and empire heritage patrimony and social justice media museums and publics Examines the influence of American pragmatism on archaeology

Offers 32 new chapters by leading archaeologists and cultural anthropologists Metabolic Consequences of Changing Dietary Patterns A. P. Simopoulos, 1996-08-26 Dietary patterns have varied over time due to changing agricultural practices and climatic ecological cultural and socioeconomic factors which determine the foods that are available to humans This volume examines the metabolic consequences of recent dietary and other lifestyle changes in selected populations in Asia Australia and Africa Scientific evidence suggests that human beings evolved on a diet that was higher in protein complex carbohydrates fiber vitamin C calcium and nutrient density than the diet of developed and developing countries today The hunter gatherer diet was lower in simple carbohydrates total fat saturated fat and trans fatty acids while also maintaining a balance between the omega 6 and omega 3 polyunsaturated fatty acids The reviews in this volume describe the adverse metabolic effects now occurring in different populations undergoing rapid change and suggest how these detrimental effects on health can be prevented or modified The Oxford Companion to Global Change Andrew Goudie, David Cuff, 2008-11-21 The Oxford Companion to Global Change is a fresh look at the world and the compelling environmental issues of the early 21st century including global warming and its technical and regional implications as well as the prospects for current energy supplies and the promise of new technologies In one convenient volume it brings together current knowledge about the relations between technological social demographic economic and political factors as well as biological chemical and physical systems It is an essential reference work for law and policy practitioners researchers and other professionals seeking to understand any aspect of global change Disasters that Changed Australia Richard Evans, 2009 From natural phenomenon such as Cyclone Tracy and the Ash Wednesday and Black Friday fires to key moments in our military history such as Flanders in 1917 and the fall of Singapore this is an essential guide to understanding the people the ideas and the events that defined the course of Australia's history Empire and Environmental Anxiety J. Beattie, 2011-05-25 A new interpretation of imperialism and environmental change and the anxieties imperialism generated through environmental transformation and interaction with unknown landscapes Tying together South Asia and Australasia this book demonstrates how environmental anxieties led to increasing state resource management conservation and urban reform Dimensions of Settler Colonialism in a Transnational Perspective Eva Bischoff, 2018-08-29 As a field of research settler colonial studies has developed dynamically in recent years This volume contributes a set of much needed empirical analyses of the microhistory and practices of settler colonialism Incorporating six case studies from across the Anglo world including the United States Australia and South Africa this book examines the roles different actors played in this process their individual experiences and the social and physical reorganization of settler colonial space They reconstruct the complexities of settler responses to Indigenous resistance guided by fear or religious convictions and explore the settlers potential to manoeuvre on higher political levels legitimizing frontier violence as a patriotic duty to the common good In addition they examine the production and circulation of knowledge about land and discuss the ways in which socio ecological systems were manipulated by stock farmers whose success depended upon an effective integration into a world wide economic system Overall the volume presents a unique combination of microhistorical analysis and environmental history This book was originally published as a special issue of Settler Colonial Studies Aboriginal Biocultural Knowledge in South-eastern Australia Fred Cahir,Ian Clark,Philip Clarke,2018-05 Indigenous Australians have long understood sustainable hunting and harvesting seasonal changes in flora and fauna predator prey relationships and imbalances and seasonal fire management Yet the extent of their knowledge and expertise has been largely unknown and underappreciated by non Aboriginal colonists especially in the south east of Australia where Aboriginal culture was severely fractured Aboriginal Biocultural Knowledge in South eastern Australia is the first book to examine historical records from early colonists who interacted with south eastern Australian Aboriginal communities and documented their understanding of the environment natural resources such as water and plant and animal foods medicine and other aspects of their material world This book provides a compelling case for the importance of understanding Indigenous knowledge to inform discussions around climate change biodiversity resource management health and education It will be a valuable reference for natural resource management agencies academics in Indigenous studies and anyone interested in Aboriginal culture and knowledge

Environmental Movements around the World Timothy Doyle,Sherilyn MacGregor,2013-12-09 An unprecedented study of environmentalism environmental movements and efforts at greening across the globe written by culturally embedded scholars with both academic expertise and first hand experience with grassroots advocacy Protection of our planet its people and its natural resources has been a topic of numerous debates in many nations for the past 50 years Each hemisphere continent and country has environmental challenges unique to the region giving birth to green movements all over the world Until now very few resources have compiled the political scientific economic philosophical and religious viewpoints of these programs in one place This two volume work provides a comprehensive collection of the ideas and actions that inform environmentalism at local national and regional levels across the globe Environmental Movements around the World Shades of Green in Politics and Culture includes viewpoints from experts in the fields of political science history international relations environmental studies and sociology that enable readers to compare and contrast different cultures attitudes and solutions towards environmental issues Providing both a broad view of international efforts to protect the earth while also spotlighting very specific examples of environmentally motivated strategies the set explores the political strategies and cultural perspectives behind conservation and environmental activism in countries worldwide Deep Futures Doug Cocks,2003 What is the future of humanity Will we survive this century and if we do how well will we survive into the next millennium This text addresses these questions looking at what has been foreseen by serious future gazers and scientists for the prospects of the human and post human lineage Eden and the Fall - the Fallacies of Radical Ecological History ,1999 Radical ecology claims to be a new movement at the cutting edge of social change offering a solution to current social and ecological problems through the rejection of reformist ecological politics in favour of a radical restructuring of industrial and especially Western society. The claim to have discovered the historical cause of current ecological and social problems plays a key role in validating this radical approach. Although numerous interpretations of the historical origins of existing social and ecological problems exist within radical ecology, three main variants have been identified. This thesis critically examines the three main variants of radical ecological history: the belief in primal harmony, the belief in the civilisation of the goddess and its destruction by a Kurgan invasion, and the view that the rise of capitalism and the mechanistic world view was responsible for the ecological and social crises of today. In so doing, it also examines a number of key questions central to radical ecological history: when did violence and hierarchy begin in human history; is it possible to argue that today's ecological crisis has a religious cause; and can the scientific, technological, and commercial revolutions be truly described as purely Western phenomena. The main findings of this thesis are that each of these variants of radical ecological history is chronically flawed. In addition to numerous empirical errors, each of these historical interpretations is based on an extremely simplistic Eurocentric reading of the past based on the use of archetypal stereotypes of good and evil that have little or no historical foundation. While these interpretations of history vary profoundly, they are all based on the same underlying model of history whose origins lie in the Judeo-Christian apocalyptic tradition and ultimately in Zoroastrianism. While some of the flaws of radical ecological history are a result of poor scholarship, it is argued that it is the use of t

Pictures of Time Beneath Kirsty Douglas, 2010. Examines three celebrated scientific landscapes: Adelaide's Hallett Cove, Lake Callabonna in South Australia, and the World Heritage listed Willandra Lakes Region of NSW. It offers philosophical insights into significant issues of heritage management and our understanding of place, time, nation, and science.

Bush Heritage Australia Sarah Martin, 2016-09-01. With a plan to own or manage one per cent of Australia by 2025, Bush Heritage Australia is an organisation with big ambitions. Started by Bob Brown in 1991, Bush Heritage was born from an urgent mission to protect pristine land from logging. After buying two blocks of land in Tasmania's Liffey Valley, Brown built a philanthropic organisation to help pay for them. As donations flowed in and the organisation grew, Bush Heritage set its sights on acquiring tracts of land across the country, repairing environmental degradation and bringing native plants and wildlife back to health. Twenty-five years later, with more than one million hectares in its care, Bush Heritage's achievements are celebrated in this book, along with its growth from humble beginnings into a large non-profit with benefactors all over the world. Central to this story are the ecologists, researchers, land managers, local Indigenous groups, staff, donors, and a brigade of volunteers who have helped the organisation thrive. For the ever-growing band of benefactors and the volunteers and staff of Bush Heritage Australia, happiness flows from our combined effort to ensure that Australia's unique landscapes, wildlife, and ecosystems prosper into the future.

BOB BROWN Landscape Disturbance and Biodiversity in Mediterranean-Type Ecosystems Philip W. Rundel, Gloria Montenegro, Fabian M. Jaksic, 2013-04-17. Human impact on natural landscapes through urbanization and agricultural expansion are becoming more and more dramatic and are the cause of serious environmental problems This volume examines the effect of landscape disturbance on plant and animal diversity in the five mediterranean climate regions of the world It begins with three introductory chapters broadly reviewing the issues of landscape degradation Further contributions describe regional land use conflicts in each of the five regions Landscape disturbance and plant diversity and landscape disturbance and animal diversity are treated in separate chapters Four contributions deal with demography and ecophysiology in vegetation succession following disturbance The volume closes with a consideration of the future addressing aspects of environmental politics
