Future Dimensions Of World Food And Population Richard G. Woods, 2019-02-28 Is it possible to feed those who now are hungry in the world in addition to the billions of people who will be born by the end of the century Or are we headed for an inevitable Malthusian catastrophe because the task is impossible What can developing countries do to increase agricultural self reliance What population dynamics accompany the transition from high birth and death rates in developing countries to low birth and death rates What research can aid the struggle to provide food to the world s masses These and other questions are explored by an array of experts who participated in the Congressional Roundtable on World Food and Population during 1979 80 They offer this collection of papers in the spirit of optimism about the future and about the U S role in international development

Salunkhe, S.S. Deshpande, 2012-12-06 The present world population of about five billion and its projected growth create enormous pressures and demands for food and industrial raw materials It is to crop plants one of our precious few renewable resources that we must look to meet most of these needs Globally about 88% of our caloric requirements and 90% of our protein ultimately derive from plant sources ample evidence of their importance to humankind Our survival will therefore continue to depend on the world s largest and certainly most important industry agriculture Yet in spite of our long history of domestication and civilization the number of crop species involved in sustaining human life is strictly limited Essentially some twenty four crops protect us from starvation To know these basic food crop plants to study how they function and how their productivity may be improved is the first step in solving the world food problem The primary objectives in writing this book were to address this challenge and to review comprehensively the wealth of available yet scattered information on food crop productivity and processing Unlike several other texts and monographs in this field the present work was intended to give in a single volume a quick informative view of the various problems from field to table concerning the major food crops worldwide
