Friendly Fire John Simmons Short Fiction Award:

Friendly Fire Kathryn Chetkovich, 1998 Kathryn Chetkovich's stories detail the lives of women finding their way in a contemporary world where the traditional maps of love family and community are no longer particularly reliable These are women who find themselves in that mysterious zone of existence that separates our expectations from what eventually befalls us It's a gap between what we want and what's offered between what we think we're capable of and the gesture that must suffice Consequently Chetkovich's characters in Friendly Fire often to their own consternation find themselves chasing a dream while simultaneously searching for its opposite As the title suggests Friendly Fire is a collection that describes how we are sometimes brought down by those we love often unintentionally sometimes through willful acts and usually under circumstances we soon regret To these characters romance is both a mystery and a challenge Their friendships fed equally by intimacy jealousy and frankness often possess the intensity of marriage and the bonds that are born of shared pain Ultimately it's the mistakes the moments when they fail each other through lies affairs harsh words lapses in loyalty that provide the sudden openings through which these characters see themselves and recognize each other Their transgressions help identify who they are and finally bring them closer together

The Thin Tear In The Fabric Of Space Douglas Trevor, 2005-10-01 The Thin Tear in the Fabric of Space gathers stories about coping with grief trying to love people who have died and more broadly leaving old versions of the self behind sometimes by choice and sometimes out of necessity In each of the nine stories Douglas Trevor's characters are forced to face uncomfortable realities For Elena Gavrushnekov in the title story that means admitting after the death of her beloved that she still longs for contact with other human bodies For Peter in Central Square it is realizing that like his deceased father before him he is drinking himself to death Unable to confront his incapacitated mother and the memory of the plane crash that killed his father Edwin Morris in Saint Francis in Flint is compelled to acknowledge that his saintly aspirations are not what they appear to be while Sharon Mackaney in The Surprising Weight of the Body's Organs struggles with uncontrollable outbursts of rage in the wake of her young son's death In moments of great pain and loss when self-expression seems impossible and terribly useless the characters in these stories nonetheless discover the tenderness of others In The River the narrator finds that the friendship he has forged with a French girl with whom he can only just communicate has bred intense almost intuitive compassion while in Fellowship of the Bereaved the disconsolate brother of the deceased sister who occupies the empty center of the story uncovers not only anger in his parents but also empathy and humor As these characters persevere in their own lives they do so mindful of and humanized by the experiences of having seen people they know and love slip unexpectedly into the thin tear in the fabric of space that quiet chasm that so resolutely separates the living from the dead and daring poised yet startling these stories take shape in reality but reality they sometimes show us is not a separate realm from the fantastic or the surreal Two couples meet for dinner to acknowledge an affair A mannequin recalls a lover and the life she mysteriously lost Two girls observe a young widow's grief through a café window A man's hat is as discerning as Cinderella's shoe In the fifteen stories that comprise this collection some short as breaths two of them novelettes Slomski writes with a keen eye about relationships About the desires that pull us together and the betrayals that push us apart About jealousy obsession loneliness and regret the byproducts of loving someone that keep us awake at night The characters in these stories share meals drink wine buy furniture and art They live domestic lives so often wanting to love someone yet ending up alone In one story a woman's fiancé leaves her when she goes to post some mail In another story a man can't move past an affair his wife almost had Another story describes a series of drawings to detail a couple's end But while loss and heartache pervade these stories there is also occasional hope For as the title story shows us sometimes a breakup isn't an end at all but the beginning of your life

The Lightning Jar Christian Felt, 2018-10-15 The Lightning Jar is about lonely children It may be more about lonely children than any other book These children are good at making imaginary friends but have trouble keeping them For instance there s the Morra who plunges the world into eternal winter But she also teaches Mons the meaning of love and helps him burn down his house after some Gypsies turn it into a middle school Then there s the Gorbels Amanda invented it to scare the Guest but it ended up liking him best A bit like a cat but more like a spider it turned out a lot cuter than she d intended And the Wisps they re pretty unhappy about being dead Karl accidentally turned his smallest cousin into a Wisp They were trying to catch some lightning in a jar but they caught the smallest cousin s ghost instead Karl had to drown it for its own good Something similar happened with his grandma Astrid and a rock named Melisande But the loneliest character is probably Christian He insists on being from J mtland where Karl and Amanda live When his cousin Eskild got married Christian rewrote their past so it s like The Little Mermaid except Eskild drowns and Christian doesn t earn a soul In the spirit of Tove Jansson William Blake and Calvin Hobbes The Lightning Jar contains a volatile mix of innocence and experience faith and doubt nostalgia and a sense of all there is to gain by accepting reality on fresh terms

Invite Glen Pourciau, 2008-10 Intense inner and outer monologues resonate through the lives of Glen Pourciau s characters We hear the voice of a man who will not stop talking the voice of a man who does not want to talk the voice of a man stunned into silence by his sudden awareness of a desire he did not know he felt and the voice of a man struggling to accept his imminent death Inhabiting an outwardly bland landscape that overlays internal questions and recurring confusion the narrators of these ten intensely felt stories strive to understand their varied predicaments Conflicts with neighbors arise troubling memories return suspicions and fears lead people into isolated corners as distances open up inside them and around them And in those open spaces the sometimes humorous sometimes obsessive voices continue their quest In the final story Deep Wilderness the voices seem to fragment as a family comes apart While his characters struggle to come to terms with their inner wilderness Glen Pourciau s spare riveting voice maintains a constant presence Invite is a debut collection that speaks volumes
