The Teaching Philosophy of Philip T. Rodgers A Reflective Essay

The grand end of instruction ... is not to stamp our minds irresistibly on the young but to stir up their own; not to make them see with our eyes but to look inquiringly and steadily with their own; not to give them a definite amount of knowledge but inspire a fervent love of truth; not form an outward regularity but to touch inward springs.

-Rev. William Channing

Education is not the filling of a pail, but the lighting of a fire.

-W.B. Yeats

As a student, I always had the greatest respect for those teachers who could teach me not by telling me the answer but by showing me that either I already knew it, or that I could find it myself. It was certainly easy and addictive to accept a straightforward explanation to a question and get on with the day, but I came to find that true learning sprang only from the interaction of the inquisitive mind and the thoughtful teacher who was careful enough not to provide the answer but the path to it.

Since I became a teacher in 1996, I have tried to instill in myself these qualities that I held in such high esteem in my own teachers. I have always had compassion for students, recognizing they all come with their own vision and expectations, their own skills and knowledge, some well-developed and some needing improvement. Through this, I have adopted several tenets that guide my personal approach to teaching:

Believe in beneficence. I have come to believe that in general, most all students are inherently good. Particularly at the level of pharmacy school, they have a deep desire to learn and become professionals, though their outward demeanor may not always reflect this attitude. Though some students may seem distracted, uninterested, or challenging in nature, at their heart most students possess an inquisitive nature, and a need to succeed, though they may define their own level of success. As a good teacher, it is my job to find and inspire this desire in all students. I recall having several students who entered the rotation viewing it as little more than just a requirement, but exited expressing a newfound love of the profession or desire to do more. I encourage this attitude by letting students know on the first day of a rotation that a very important expectation I have of them is to arrive every single day wanting to learn something. If they do so, I will guarantee to teach them something each day of the experience.

From A Memory Reflective Essays:

From a Memory William J. Mohan, 2002-12-01 From A Memory is a first person perspective of provocative thoughts on an increasingly common experience the loss of memory Tommy Mullen writes the introduction about his Dad John Mullen John committed by Tommy to an assisted living facility because of memory loss tells his son a month before he dies about essays he has written while in his own home the previous Winter and Spring There are 20 essays by John who had an extensive background in philosophy with 10 brief commentaries by Tommy These essays were written as a form of philosophical therapy which John was convinced would keep his memory alive and therefore avoid commitment John committed by Tommy to an assisted living facility because of memory loss tells his son a month before he dies about essays he has written while in his own home the previous Winter and Spring An Original Essay on the Immateriality & Immortality of the Human Soul Samuel Drew, 1829 The British and Anglo-Irish Thing-Essay from 1701 to 2021 Daniel Schneider, 2023-09-29 While the it narrative the thing poem and thing theatre have been around for some time the essay which is often considered literature s fourth genre is still lacking its thing subgenre Yet particularly British and Anglo Irish literature display a long albeit so far implicit tradition of texts that can be categorised as thing essays Starting with Jonathan Swift s Meditation upon a Broomstick 1701 and continuing until today these texts draw broader insights from the contemplation of a material item of daily life This book provides the first theoretical conceptualisation of this genre Bringing elements from essay studies and the New Materialisms together it shows why the essay lends itself particularly well to literarisations of the personal relationships that people foster to everyday objects While the idiosyncrasies of each essay show the versatility of thing essays the study also seeks to unearth changing attitudes towards things and thus towards people s material surroundings in general throughout time In order to account for such synchronic and diachronic differences in thing essays this study develops a typology of three modes via which things can be approached essayistically In the book s second part this framework will be employed in close readings and historicisations of 14 thing essays from 1701 until 2021 Ranging from satire to sentimental writing from religion to consumerism from class to gender differences from feelings of nationality to exoticism from the French Revolution to Freud and from art to everyday life the stylistic and thematic broadness of these thing essays ultimately shows the multifarious connections between human life and materiality An Original Essay on the Immateriality & Immortality of the Human Soul, Founded Solely on Physical and Rational Principles Samuel Drew, 1810

Charles Bonnet, Analytical Essay on the Faculties of the Soul , 2022-01-06 In the course of the eighteenth century understanding human cognitive life came to be construed as something to be explored in terms of the physiology of the sensory organs the nerves and the brain a form of naturalization that effectively moved cognition out of the realm of philosophy as it had traditionally been understood Bonnet s Analytical Essay on the Faculties of the Soul was at the forefront of these developments and this is its first English translation Drawing on his earlier work in natural history he was the leading entomologist of his era he approaches problems of the nature of the mind via the physiology and anatomy of the brain and sensory systems His approach is one of reverse engineering starting from an organic statue without faculties and investigating how it would need to be modified to produce a human being Bonnet takes up a position that cuts across the standard understanding of the period as a clash between materialism and dualism While his approach was rigorously naturalistic and physiological this did not lead him to reject the notion of a soul Instead he argues that in order to make sense of their sensory abilities we need to attribute a soul to animals as well as human beings At the same time he argues that if personal immortality is to be possible it can be conceived along the lines of insect metamorphosis which shows how different biological forms can harbour a single identity
