F Herbert Bormann, 1991 In this book a distinguished group of environmental experts argues that in order to solve global environmental problems we must view them in a broad interdisciplinary perspective that recognizes the relations the interconnected circle among ecology economics and ethics Currently the circle is broken they say because environmental policy is decided on short term estimations of material return that take little account of the economic or moral burdens that will be borne by future generations if we deplete our resources now The Elgar Companion to Social Economics, Second Edition John B. Vatn s book shows the way John Gowdy Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute US This important text develops an institutional response to the core issues raised in public policy making and develops a distinct understanding of the role of institutions not least in the study of environmental problems It questions how are conflicting interests shaped and taken into account in policy making How should they be accounted for What motivates the behaviour of firms and individuals and how is it possible to change these motivations to produce the favoured common outcomes The author addresses these questions by integrating elements from classical institutional economics neoclassical economics sociology and ecological economics He argues that public policy in general and environmental policy in particular are best examined from an institutional perspective In this way the author presents a distinct and consistent alternative to standard neoclassical economics for students and scholars who
