Economic Analysis of Institutions and Systems S. Pejovich, 2012-12-06 In the late 1980s the field of comparative economics and NATO faced a similar problem the threat of obsolescence A predictable reaction of those who had made major investments in both comparative economics and NATO was to look for a new job It was time to say comparative economic systems are dead long live comparative economic systems The purpose of this book is to redirect study of what we called comparative economic systems toward analysis of the development of institutions and the effects of alternative institutional arrangements on economic performance To that end the book internalizes into a theoretical framework 1 the effects of alternative property rights on the costs of transactions and incentives structures 2 the effects of the costs of transactions and incentives on economic behavior and 3 the evidence for refutable implications of those effects Analysis here focuses on the issues propositions and conclusions that lend themselves to the only known scientific test empirical verification Thus this book is not about what socialism or capitalism could have been should have been or should be Nor is it an ode to capitalism Its purpose is not to assert that capitalism is a better economic system than socialism The history of this century and the market for institutions have done that My purpose is to explain what is it that makes the institutions of capitalism better in terms of economic outcome than all other alternatives that have been tried since the beginning of recorded history

Economics and Ecology Edward B. Barbier,2012-12-06 In the Summer of 1991 Bob Carling who was then Life Sciences Editor of Chapman Hall approached me over the possibility of producing an edited volume of works on economics and ecology As we discussed the matter further what became clear is that there is a growing literature on the frontiers of both disciplines that has involved economists borrowing from ecology and ecologists borrowing from economics We decided that this volume should try to provide a small cross section of that literature I was very much interested in editing this volume for several reasons First one of my principal interests in economics has been how the economic analysis of natural resource and environmental problems can benefit from the concepts and lessons learned from other disciplines in particular ecology I was grateful at having the opportunity to pull together a selection of readings that illustrate how the integration of the two disciplines can lead to fruitful analysis Second I was also aware that as Director of the London Environmental Economics Centre and as a Senior Researcher at the International Institute of Environment and Development I was fortunate to have worked with or to have known a number of economists and ecologists whose work would be ideal for this volume I was delighted that so many of my friends and colleagues were as enthusiastic about this project as I and agreed to participate
