German Firefighting Vehicles in World War II Michael Foedrowitz, 1997 This book presents over 300 photographs showing the service of German fire fighting vehicles in World War II with the emphasis on the various vehicles manufacturers and the organization of the German fire fighting regiments German Military Vehicles of World War II Jean-Denis G.G. Lepage, 2014-11-18 This volume presents a cross section of the most common transport vehicles produced and used by the German army Tanks plus auxiliary vehicles such as cars motorcycles vans ambulances trucks and tractors made it possible for the troops to keep moving These lightly armored or unarmored vehicles aka soft skins operated behind the front lines maintaining supply lines connecting armies with their home bases and ultimately determining the outcome of battle Beginning with the development of military vehicles in the early 1930s this volume discusses the ways in which this new technology influenced and to some extent facilitated Hitler's program of rearmament Nomenclature standard equipment camouflage and the combat roles of the various vehicles are thoroughly examined Individual vehicle types are arranged and discussed by the following classifications cars and motorcycles trucks and tractors half tracks and wheeled combat vehicles Accompanied by well researched detailed line drawings each section deals with a number of individual vehicles describing their design manufacture and specific use Cumulative Book Index , 1998 A world list of books in the English language Air & Space Smithsonian , 1998 Technical Abstract Bulletin , The Electric Vehicle Gijs Mom, 2013-02-15 Winner of the Engineer Historian Award from the International History and Heritage Committee of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Nicholas Joseph Cugnot Award given by the Society of Automotive Historians Recent attention to hybrid cars that run on both gasoline and electric batteries has made the electric car an apparent alternative to the internal combustion engine and its attendant environmental costs and geopolitical implications Few people realize that the electric car neither a recent invention nor a historical curiosity has a story as old as that of the gasoline powered automobile and that at one time many in the nascent automobile industry believed battery powered engines would become the dominant technology In both Europe and America electric cars and trucks succeeded in meeting the needs of a wide range of consumers Before World War II as many as 30 000 electric cars and more than 10 000 electric trucks plied American roads European cities were busy with electrically propelled fire engines taxis delivery vans buses heavy trucks and private cars Even so throughout the century long history of electric propulsion the widespread conviction it was an inferior technology remained stubbornly in place an assumption mirrored in popular and scholarly memory In The Electric Vehicle Gijs Mom challenges this view arguing that at the beginning of the automobile age neither the internal combustion engine nor the battery powered vehicle enjoyed a clear advantage He explores the technology and marketing consumer ratio faction relationship over four generations of electric vehicle design with separate chapters on privately owned passenger cars and commercial vehicles Mom makes comparisons among European countries and between Europe and America He finds that the electric vehicle offered many advantages among them greater reliability and control less noise and pollution He also argues that a nexus of factors cultural underpowered and less rugged electric cars seemed feminine at a time when most car buyers were men structural the shortcomings of battery technology at the time and systemic the infrastructural problems of changing large numbers of batteries ultimately gave an edge to the internal combustion engine One hopes as a new generation of electric vehicles becomes a reality The Electric Vehicle offers a long overdue reassessment of the place of this technology in the history of street transportation Military Construction Appropriations for 1971 United States.
