Hand and Mind David McNeill, 1992 A research subject is shown a cartoon like the 1950 Canary Row a classic Sylvester and Tweedy Bird caper that features Sylvester climbing up a downspout swallowing a bowling ball and slamming into a brick wall After watching the cartoon the subject is videotaped recounting the story from memory to a listener who has not seen the cartoon Painstaking analysis of the videotapes revealed that although the research subjects children as well as adults some neurologically impaired represented a wide variety of linguistic groupings the gestures of people speaking English and a half dozen other languages manifest the same principles Relying on data from more than ten years of research McNeill shows that gestures do not simply form a part of what is said and meant but have an impact on thought itself

Freemasons, World Order, and Mind Wars Nicolas K. Laos, 2016 Many have speculated on the role played by Freemasons in launching the French and American Revolutions and in today's Bohemian Grove and other secretive forums where world events seem to be shaped This book presents the history of Freemasonry in a philosophically rigorous and eloquent way and proposes a new philosophically significant and historically meaningful Freemasonic path. Along the way the author casts light on important little understood aspects of world history presenting an enlightening narrative of world events. Dr Nicolas Laos is the Founder and President of the autonomous international Freemasonic and scholarly fraternity United Traditionalist Grand Sanctuaries of the Ancient and Primitive Rite Memphis Misraim. He names many of the prominent men who have been members over the centuries and provides a history of Freemasonry and discusses how the movement spread how it relates to religion international affairs and world history and the symbolism used.

Castes of Mind Nicholas B. Dirks, 2011-10-09 When thinking of India it is hard not to think of caste. In academic and common parlance alike caste has become a central symbol for India marking it as fundamentally different from other places while expressing its essence. Nicholas Dirks argues that caste is in fact neither an unchanged survival of ancient India nor a single system that reflects a core cultural value. Rather than a basic expression of Indian tradition caste is a modern phenomenon the product of a concrete historical encounter between India and British colonial rule. Dirks does not contend that caste was invented by the British. But under British domination caste did become a single term capable of naming and above all subsuming India's diverse forms of social identity and organization. Dirks traces the career of caste from the medieval kingdoms of southern India to the textual traces of early colonial archives from the commentaries of an eighteenth century Jesuit to the enumerative obsessions of the late nineteenth century census from the ethnographic writings of colonial administrators to those of twentieth century Indian scholars seeking to rescue ethnography from its colonial legacy. The book also surveys the rise of caste politics in the twentieth century focusing in particular on the emergence of caste based movements that have threatened nationalist consensus. Castes of Mind is an ambitious book written by an accomplished scholar with a rare mastery of centuries of Indian history and anthropology. It uses the idea of caste as the basis for a magisterial history of modern India. And in making a powerful case that the colonial past continues to haunt the Indian present it makes an important contribution to current postcolonial theory and scholarship on contemporary Indian politics.

Allegories of One's Own Mind David G. Riede, 2005 Perhaps because major Victorians like Thomas Carlyle and Matthew Arnold proscribed Romantic melancholy as morbidly diseased and unsuitable for poetic expression critics have neglected or understated the central importance of melancholy in Victorian poetry. Allegories of One's Own Mind re-directs our attention to a mode that Arnold was rejecting as morbid but also acknowledging when he disparaged the widely current idea that the highest ambition of poetry should be to present an allegory of the poet's own mind. This book shows how early Victorian poets suffered from and railed against what they perceived to be a disabling post Wordsworthian melancholy we might refer to it as depression and yet benefited from this self absorbed or love obsessed state which ironically made them more productive. David G. Riede argues that the dominant thematic and formal concerns of the age in fact are embodied in the ambivalence of Carlyle, Arnold and others who pitted a Victorian ideology of duty, rationality and high moral character against a still compelling Romantic cultivation of the deep self intuited as melancholy Such ambivalence in fact is in itself constitutive of melancholy long understood as the product of conscience raging against inchoate desire and it constitutes the mood of the age's most important poetry represented here in the major works of Alfred Tennyson Elizabeth Barrett Browning and even in the notoriously optimistic Robert Browning David G Riede is professor of English at The Ohio State University

Culture in Mind Bradd Shore, 1998-10-29 Despite the recognized importance of cultural diversity in understanding the modern world the emerging science of cognitive psychology has relied far more on experimental psychology neurobiology and computer science than on cultural anthropology for its models of how we think In this exciting new book anthropologist Bradd Shore has created the first study linking multi culturalism to cognitive psychology exploring the complex relationship between culture in public institutions and in mental representations In so doing he answers in a completely new way the age old question of whether humans are basically the same psychologically independent of cultures or basically diverse because of cultural differences The first half of the book emphasizes cultural models from Australian Aboriginal rituals and Samoan comedy skits to more familiar terrain including a study of baseball as a cultural model for Americans Along the way the author sheds new and novel light on many familiar institutions from educational curricula and shopping malls to modular furniture and cyberpunk fiction These observations are then linked to theoretical developments in linguistics semiotics and neuroscience creating a bold new approach to understanding the role of culture in everyday meaning making The author argues that culture must be considered an intrinsic component of the human mind to a degree that most psychologists and even many anthropologists have not recognized This new position of cultural models will make absorbing reading for psychologists anthropologists linguists and philosophers and to anyone interested in the issues of cultural diversity multiculturalism or cognitive science in general

The Mind of the Novel Bruce F. Kavin, 2006 From Moby Dick to The Unnamable from A Tale of a Tub to The Book of Questions Bruce Kavin explores the nature of self conscious fiction and compares its structure to that of human consciousness Focusing on texts that confront their own limits by trying to name the unnamable the ineffable self Kavin draws on methods from literary criticism to systems theory to explain a variety of first person works that dance around the ungraspable subject

Mind in Motion Barbara Tversky, 2019-05-21 An eminent psychologist offers a major new theory of human cognition movement not language is the foundation of thought When we try to think about how we think we can't help but think of words Indeed some have called language the stuff of thought But pictures are remembered far better than words and describing faces scenes and events defies words Anytime you take a shortcut or play chess or basketball or rearrange your furniture in your mind you've done something remarkable abstract thinking without words In Mind in Motion psychologist Barbara Tversky shows that spatial cognition isn't just a peripheral aspect of thought but its very foundation enabling us to draw meaning from our bodies and their actions in the world Our actions in real space get turned into mental actions on thought often spouting spontaneously from our bodies as gestures Spatial thinking underlies creating and using maps assembling furniture devising football strategies designing airports understanding the flow of people traffic water and ideas Spatial thinking even underlies the structure and meaning of language why we say we push ideas forward or tear them apart why we're feeling up or have grown far apart Like Thinking Fast and Slow before it Mind in Motion gives us a new way to think about how and where thinking takes place

Creativity and the Agile Mind Tony Veale, Kurt Feytaerts, Charles Forceville, 2013-05-28 Creativity is a highly prized quality in any modern endeavor whether artistic scientific or professional Though a much studied subject and the topic of a great many case studies the field of creativity research is still very much an open one Creativity remains a field where absolute definitions hold very little water and where true insight can only emerge when we properly appreciate from a nuanced multi disciplinary perspective the crucial distinction between the producer's perspective and the consumer's perspective Theories that afford us a critical appreciation of a creative work do not similarly afford an explanatory insight into the origins and development of the work As researchers we must approach creativity both as producers to consider the vast search spaces that a producer encounters and to appreciate the need for heuristic strategies for negotiating this space and as consumers to appreciate the levels of shared knowledge foreground and background that is exploited by the producer to achieve a knowingly creative effect in the mind of the consumer This volume thus brings together both producers and consumers in a cross disciplinary exploration of this complex many faceted phenomenon
