Information Processing And Living Systems Vladimir B Bajic, Tin Wee Tan, 2005-06-01 Information processing and information flow occur in the course of an organism's development and throughout its lifespan. Organisms do not exist in isolation but interact with each other constantly within a complex ecosystem. The relationships between organisms such as those between prey or predator, host and parasite, and between mating partners are complex and multidimensional. In all cases, there is constant communication and information flow at many levels. This book focuses on information processing by life forms and the use of information technology in understanding them. Readers are first given a comprehensive overview of biocomputing before navigating the complex terrain of natural processing of biological information using physiological and analogous computing models. The remainder of the book deals with artificial processing of biological information as a human endeavor in order to derive new knowledge and gain insight into life forms and their functioning. Specific innovative applications and tools for biological discovery are provided as the link and complement to biocomputing. Since artificial processing of biological information is complementary to natural processing, a better understanding of the former helps us improve the latter. Consequently, readers are exposed to both domains and when dealing with biological problems of their interest will be better equipped to grasp relevant ideas. American Book Publishing Record, 2003

An Inconvenient Apocalypse Wes Jackson, Robert Jensen, 2022-09-01 Confronting harsh ecological realities and the multiple cascading crises facing our world today. An Inconvenient Apocalypse argues that humanity's future will be defined not by expansion but by contraction. For decades, our world has understood that we are on the brink of an apocalypse and yet the only implemented solutions have been small and convenient feel-good initiatives that avoid unpleasant truths about the root causes of our impending disaster. Wes Jackson and Robert Jensen argue that we must reconsider the origins of the consumption crisis and the challenges we face in creating a survivable future. Longstanding assumptions about economic growth and technological progress, the dream of a future of endless bounty, are no longer tenable. The climate crisis has already progressed beyond simple or nondisruptive solutions. The end result will be apocalyptic; the only question now is how bad it will be. Jackson and Jensen examine how geographic determinism shaped our past and led to today's social injustice, consumerist culture, and high-energy, high-technology dystopias. The solution requires addressing today's systemic failures and confronting human nature by recognizing the limits of our ability to predict how those failures will play out over time. Though these massive challenges can feel overwhelming, Jackson and Jensen weave a secular reading of theological concepts: the prophetic, the apocalyptic, a saving remnant, and grace to chart a collective realistic path for humanity not only to survive our apocalypse but also to emerge on the other side with a renewed appreciation of the larger living world.
