Equitable Digital Medicine and Home Health Care Tambone, Vittoradolfo, Anna De Benedictis, Francesco De Micco, Emanuele Lettieri. Digital technologies shape the way in which individuals and health systems interact to promote health and treat illness. Their propensity to exacerbate inequalities is increasingly being highlighted as a concern for public health. Personal, contextual, and technological factors all interact and determine uptake and consequent use of digital technologies for health. Digitalization and the introduction of telemedicine services have demonstrably improved equity in delivering health care services. Digital tech is making healthcare proactive as opposed to reactive, enlarging and enabling access to quality healthcare for communities that were traditionally underserved or marginalized and for home health care. In this scenario, there are still relevant ethical issues that need to be addressed in order to ensure an effective and efficient care in digital medicine. The Topic Editors are inviting papers on a range of research practices and educational topics regarding ethical issues particularly related to the experience of patients, front-line healthcare professionals, and healthcare managers.
