Working in Health Marko Vujicic,Kelechi Ohiri,Susan Sparkes,2009-01-01 Vanuatu is a traditionally male dominated and largely patriarchal society Women have extremely low representation in parliament and in other decision making bodies Despite this women are increasingly involved in private sector development and in the market economy Available statistics suggest that women own nearly 30 percent of all businesses and approximately 20 percent of small and medium sized enterprises Yet government support for women s economic empowerment and women in business has been limited and reforms are needed to the general legal framework to ensure gender equality This v Bolivia Vicente Fretes Cibils,Marcelo Giugale,Connie Luff,2006 Bolivia s challenges with regard to policy are multiple deep and multifaceted and as such they require integral proposals The book tries to cover these challenges in their different dimensions and presents

options to grow more and better creating jobs with benefits for all and without corruption and with civic participation The design and implementation of all these options simultaneously or in the short and medium term is not feasible and from here blooms options

Bounded Rationality and Policy Diffusion Kurt Weyland, 2009-02-09 Why do very different countries often emulate the same policy model Two years after Ronald Reagan's income tax simplification of 1986 Brazil adopted a similar reform even though it threatened to exacerbate income disparity and jeopardize state revenues And Chile's pension privatization of the early 1980s has spread throughout Latin America and beyond even though many poor countries that have privatized their social security systems including Bolivia and El Salvador lack some of the preconditions necessary to do so successfully In a major step beyond conventional rational choice accounts of policy decision making this book demonstrates that bounded not full rationality drives the spread of innovations across countries When seeking solutions to domestic problems decision makers often consider foreign models sometimes promoted by development institutions like the World Bank But as Kurt Weyland argues policymakers apply inferential shortcuts at the risk of distortions and biases Through an in depth analysis of pension and health reform in Bolivia Brazil Costa Rica El Salvador and Peru Weyland demonstrates that decision makers are captivated by neat bold cognitively available models And rather than thoroughly assessing the costs and benefits of external models they draw excessively firm conclusions from limited data and overextrapolate from spurts of success or failure Indications of initial success can thus trigger an upsurge of policy diffusion reducing poverty and promoting growth and development How can poor countries attract investors to build the infrastructure their economies need How can they develop systems to bring clean water to the 2 billion people without it today How can they train teachers and bring to class the 115 million children who have not yet received any education And how can rich countries be persuaded to lower market barriers helping to reverse the decline in export prices for poor countries that has left them earning less from trade today than in the 1970s These are the types of questions that are addressed in this edition of The World Bank Research Program Abstracts from Current Studies This volume reports on research projects initiated under way or completed from July 2003 through June 2004 It covers 151 research projects on several broad development related issues including agriculture health education environment infrastructure investment climate and more The abstract for each project describes the questions addressed the analytic methods used the findings to date and policy implications
