Rhetorical Speculations Scott Sundvall,2019-04-15 The future of writing studies is fundamentally tied to advancing technological development writing cannot be done without a technology and different technologies mediate writing differently In Rhetorical Speculations contributors engage with emerging technologies of composition through speculative modeling as a strategy for anticipatory futural thinking for rhetoric and writing studies Rhetoric and writing studies often engages technological shifts reactively after the production and reception of rhetoric and writing has changed This collection allows rhetoric and writing scholars to explore modes of critical speculation into the transformative effect of emerging technologies particularly as a means to speculate on future shifts in the intellectual pedagogical and institutional frameworks of the field In doing so the project repositions rhetoric and writing scholars as proprietors of our technological future to come rather than as secondary receivers critics and adjusters of the technological present Major and emerging voices in the field offer a range of styles that include pragmatic technical and philosophical approaches to the issue of speculative rhetoric exploring what new media writing studies could be theoretically pedagogically and institutionally as future technologies begin to impinge on the work of writing Rhetorical Speculations is at the cutting edge of the subject of futures thinking and will have broad appeal to scholars of rhetoric literacy futures studies and material and popular culture Contributors Bahareh Brittany Alaei Sarah J Arroyo Kristine L Blair Geoffrey V Carter Sid Dobrin Kristie S Fleckenstein Steve Holmes Kyle Jensen Halcyon Lawrence Alexander Monea Sean Morey Alex Reid Jeff Rice Gregory L Ulmer Anna Worm Teaching Children to be Literate Anthony V. Marion A. Hersh, Michael A Johnson, 2006-04-28 Affirmative legislative action in many countries now requires that public spaces and services be made accessible to disabled people. Although this is often interpreted as access for people with mobility impairments, such legislation also covers those who are hearing or vision impaired. In these cases, it is often the provision of advanced technological devices and aids which enables people with sensory impairments to enjoy the theatre, cinema or a public meeting to the full. Assistive Technology for the Hearing impaired Deaf and Deafblind shows the student of rehabilitation technology how this growing technical provision can be used to support those with varying reductions in auditory ability and the deafblind in modern society. Features instruction in the physiology of the ear together with methods of measurement of hearing levels and loss, the principles of electrical engineering used in assistive technology for the hearing impaired, description and demonstration of electrical engineering used in hearing aids and other communications enhancement technologies, explanation of many devices designed for every day living in terms of generic electrical engineering, sections of practical projects and investigations which will give the reader ideas for student work and for self teaching. The contributors are internationally recognised experts from the fields of audiology, electrical engineering, signal processing, telephony and assistive technology. Their combined expertise makes Assistive Technology for the Hearing impaired Deaf and Deafblind an excellent text for advanced students in assistive and rehabilitation technology and to professional engineers and medics working in assistive technology who wish to maintain an up to date knowledge of current engineering advances.
