EDITOR:
PERRY L. BLACKSHEAR

The volume is an extremely well-organized and comprehensive survey of the fire problem. The text begins at an elementary level but progresses at a proper pace to more advanced topics. A large number of up-to-date references is involved so that the reader can pursue particular aspects in greater detail.

The book should be viewed as a standard text for anyone in the fire technology field.

The immensity of social and economic reasons for concern about fires is dealt with in Part I of the text. The agricultural (forest fire) problem is described in a special chapter.

New materials and their effect on fire risks are thoroughly handled in conjunction with the classification of fires.

Heat and mass transfer in fires, fuel geometry, combustion, kinetics, radiative problems and parameters are covered and discussed in considerable detail.

The book will be of interest to:
