The Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 , International Regulation of Natural Health Products John R. Harrison,2008 This book reviews natural health product laws and regulations for Canada s primary natural health products NHP trading partners namely Australia China France Germany Hong Kong India USA United Kingdom and the European Union and compare them to Canada s natural health product regulations The study was also undertaken to identify priority areas where policy research should be focussed and then propose strategies to address these selected policy research areas The Canadian NHP definition was used to compare similar classes of products for these other countries Further the major components of the Canadian regulatory framework for NHPs that were used for research purposes were the following Product Licensing including Standards of Evidence Site Licensing Good Manufacturing Practices and Adverse Reaction Reporting Tables of regulatory information were prepared for each country providing sections for certain aspects of the Canadian NHP regulatory framework and including the main governmental regulatory authority for each country This work reveals a fast paced change and revision of national and international regulations for NHPs such as herbals vitamins minerals and homeopathic medicines Many changes in the European countries were precipitated by the implementation of European Union Directives Canada s major trading partner the United States classifies some NHPs as dietary substances while other NHPs are under the U S FDA s control as non prescription medicine and homeopathic medicines which are classified as drugs In the United States dietary substances require little regulatory scrutiny yet the regulatory environment in the United States is moving toward a more regulated system Strategies for prioritizing policy research needs in the area of international regulations of Natural Health Products NHPs were developed The priority areas for policy research fell into two main categories the safety of the products being manufactured and sold to Canadians and processes to facilitate trade between countries The overall aim for trade development should be to look for methods and means of further harmonization with trading partners and to develop Mutual Recognition Agreements MRAs Homeopathy in Healthcare Gudrun Bornhöft, Peter

Matthiessen, 2011-12-09 This volume includes the full Health Technology Assessment HTA report on effectiveness appropriateness safety and costs of homoeopathy in health care The report was commissioned by the Swiss health authorities to inform decision making on the further inclusion of homoeopathy in the list of services covered by statutory health insurance Other studies carried out as part of the Swiss Complementary Medicine Evaluation Programme PEK caused a massive stir due to their schematic and exclusively quantitative negative outcomes for homoeopathy The present report in contrast offers a differentiated evaluation of the practice of homoeopathy in health care It confirms homoeopathy as a valuable addition to the conventional medical landscape a status it has been holding for a long time in practical health care
