Ellis Merton Coulter's 1955 work Wormsloe and provides the most complete account to date of the De Rennes. Beyond the story of the De Renne family, Bragg also reveals much about the history of collecting and of the antiquarian book trade as well as of the evolution of Georgia historical documentation. Appendix material includes genealogical tables and lists of collections and publications making De Renne Three Generations of a Georgia Family an invaluable source for all scholars and aficionados of southern history.

The Fruits of Their Labor Cindy Hahamovitch, 2010-06-23 In 1933 Congress granted American laborers the right of collective bargaining but farmworkers got no New Deal. Cindy Hahamovitch's pathbreaking account of migrant farmworkers along the Atlantic Coast shows how growers enlisted the aid of the state in an unprecedented effort to keep their fields well stocked with labor. This is the story of the farmworkers: Italian immigrants from northeastern tenements, African American laborers from the South, and imported workers from the Caribbean who came to work in the fields of New Jersey, Georgia, and Florida in the decades after 1870. These farmworkers were not powerless; the author argues for growers became increasingly open to negotiation as their crops ripened in the fields. But farmers fought back with padrone or labor contracting schemes and work or fight forced labor campaigns. Hahamovitch describes how growers' efforts became more effective as federal officials assumed the role of padroni, supplying farmers with foreign workers on demand. Today's migrants are as desperate as ever, the author concludes, not because poverty is an inevitable feature of modern agricultural work but because the federal government has intervened on behalf of growers, preventing farmworkers from enjoying the fruits of their labor.

Downhome Gospel Jerrilyn McGregory, 2010-10-05 Jerrilyn McGregory explores sacred music and spiritual activism in a little-known region of the South, the Wiregrass Country of Georgia, Alabama, and North Florida. She examines African American sacred music outside of Sunday church-related activities, showing that singing conventions and anniversary programs fortify spiritual as well as social needs. In this region, African Americans maintain a social world of their own creation. Their cultural performances embrace some of the most pervasive forms of African American sacred music: spirituals, common meter, Sacred Harp, shape-note, traditional and contemporary gospel. Moreover, the contexts in which they sing include present-day observations such as the Twentieth of May, Emancipation Day, Burial League Turnouts, and Fifth Sunday. Rather than tracing the evolution of African American sacred music, this ethnographic study focuses on contemporary cultural performances, almost all by women, which embrace all forms. These women promote a female-centered theology to ensure the survival of their communities and personal networks. They function in leadership roles that withstand the test of time. Their spiritual activism presents itself as a way of life. In Wiregrass Country, "You don't have to sing like an angel" is a frequently expressed sentiment. To these women, good music is God's music, regardless of the manner delivered. Therefore, Downhome Gospel presents gospel music as being more than a transcendent sound. It is local spiritual activism that is writ large. Gospel means joy, hope, expectation, and the good news that makes the soul glad.
