international communications English has long become the lingua franca of the globalising economy and this study set out to investigate how well SMEs are prepared to meet the linguistic requirements imposed on them by global business Enterprises in the new German states are widely believed to be disadvantaged with regard to their communicative competence in English since English played only a minor role for decades but has risen to decisive significance within the past couple of years taking many companies and their employees by surprise finding them not as well prepared as their colleagues in the old German states Still finding their way to the new export markets in Western Europe the Americas and Asia are vital for the survival of Saxon economy and communicative competence in English as the lingua franca of international business is the major prerequisite for achieving this objective Corporate communicative competence involves various aspects including the foreign language skills of the employees covering the entire range of linguistic skills from oral communication including listening and speaking giving presentations or participating in negotiations to writing skills ranging from reading and writing of various text types including media literacy Apart from the personal linguistic competence of the employees the corporate linguistic competence of the company also plays a major role for the perception of the company on its international markets Therefore this study focused on investigating how well SMEs present themselves in their corporate literature and on the internet which instruments from the wide ranging selection of marketing tools they apply for communicating

Developmental Orthography Philip A. Luelsdorff, 1991-09-13 Philip Luelsdorff's highly original approach to the grammar of orthography is to analyse in detail how German pupils learn about written English In this collection of essays and experiments we are presented with the rich finds of a decade of programmatic research The context is set with an exposition of current cognitive models of reading and spelling Cognitive psychology and psycholinguistics meet in Luelsdorff's concept of linguistic error This concept forms the basis from which it is possible to derive the grammar that governs our largely unconscious and vast knowledge of written words It is proper to talk about a grammar for both orthographic and syntactic aspects of language This is because spelling knowledge is not piecemeal or erratic but bears all the hallmarks of a system Through second language orthography the author is showing us a new view of this advanced stage of spelling knowledge and its acquisition This view is exciting because it seems now possible to form very detailed hypotheses as regards first language spelling about the order in which purely orthographic knowledge is developed
