International Economic Law in the 21st Century Ernst-Ulrich Petersmann, 2012-07-24 The state centred Westphalian model of international law has failed to protect human rights and other international public goods effectively Most international trade financial and environmental agreements do not even refer to human rights consumer welfare democratic citizen participation and transnational rule of law for the benefit of citizens This book argues that these multilevel governance failures are largely due to inadequate regulation of the collective action problems in the supply of international public goods such as inadequate legal judicial and democratic accountability of governments vis a vis citizens Rather than treating citizens as mere objects of intergovernmental economic and environmental regulation and leaving multilevel governance of international public goods to discretionary foreign policy human rights and constitutional democracy call for civilizing and constitutionalizing international economic and environmental cooperation by stronger legal and judicial protection of citizens and their constitutional rights in international economic law Moreover intergovernmental regulation of transnational cooperation among citizens must be justified by principles of justice and multilevel constitutional restraints protecting rights of citizens and their public reason The reality of constitutional pluralism requires respecting legitimately diverse conceptions of human rights and democratic constitutionalism The obvious failures in the governance of interrelated trading financial and environmental systems must be restrained by cosmopolitan constitutional conceptions of international law protecting the transnational rule of law and participatory democracy for the benefit of citizens

The

Financial Crisis in Constitutional Perspective Poul F Kjaer, Gunther Teubner, Alberto Febbrajo, 2011-07-27 This volume presents the first thorough sociologically informed legal analysis of the financial crisis which unfolded in 2008 It combines a multitude of theoretically informed analyses of the causes dynamics and reactions to the crisis and contextualises these within the general structural transformations characterising contemporary society It furthermore explores the constitutional implications of the crisis and suggests concrete changes to the constitutional set up of contemporary society Although the question of individual responsibility is of crucial importance the central idea animating the volume is that the crisis cannot be reduced to a mere failure of risk perception and management for which individual and collective actors within and outside of financial organisations are responsible The 2008 crisis should rather be understood as a symptom of far deeper structural transformations For example contemporary society is characterised by massive accelerations in the speed with which societal processes are reproduced as well as radical expansions in the level of globalisation These transformations have however been asymmetrical in nature insofar as the economic system has outpaced its legal and political counterparts The future capability of legal and political systems to influence economic reproduction processes is therefore conditioned by equally radical transformations of their respective operational forms and self understanding Potentially the 2008 crisis therefore has far reaching constitutional implications
