Evolutionary Economics and Creative Destruction J. Stanley Metcalfe, 2006 The central theme of this book is competition treated as an evolutionary process in which the focus is upon economic change and not economic equilibrium This theme is explored by linking together differences in economic behaviour with the role of markets as co ordinating institutions In this picture innovation plays a central role as a primary source of differential behaviour of firms and the purpose of the book is to identify the consequences of these differences for competition and competitive advantage

Essays on Pollution Control in Economics and Management Science Fouad El Ouardighi, 2025-04-25 The book features contributions that address both environmental economics and environmental management It presents a novel dynamic modeling framework for environmental economics in which environmental absorption efficiency is considered as a time dependent variable with its own dynamics It also introduces several extensions and applications of the model including the possibility of including self regenerating environmental absorption efficiency non cooperative transboundary issues with two superimposed free rider behaviors i.e. emissions reduction and restoration efforts and deforestation In the environmental management context it puts forward an entirely new dynamic modeling framework Unlike static approaches the model considers both flow and stock variables reflecting the accumulation of pollution over time In turn the book assesses sustainable configurations for supply chain competition providing mathematical insights and managerial recommendations that integrate accumulated pollution aspects and associated negative externalities Overall the book calls for combining environmental economics and environmental management in order to arrive at more realistic empirically grounded models Given its focus the book offers a valuable resource for researchers and graduate students with an interest in addressing pollution control challenges in the fields of economics and management science

Economics, Culture and Social Theory William A. Jackson, 2009 the book is excellent in setting out and explaining a fundamental critique of economics one moreover that has been missed by most other current critics of the field Making this case is an achievement Hopefully it will have a greater impact than its author probably expects Journal of Cultural Economics Economics evolved by perfecting the taking of culture out of its reductionist and virtual world But culture has recently been reintroduced both as a sphere of application for an otherwise unchanging methodology and as a weak form of acknowledging that the economic alone is inadequate as the basis even for explaining the economy This volume is an essential critical starting point for understanding the changing relationship between economics and culture and in offering a more satisfactory and stable union between the two Ben Fine University of London UK Economics Culture and Social Theory examines how culture has been neglected in economic theorising and considers how economics could benefit by incorporating ideas from social and cultural theory Orthodox economics has prompted a long line of cultural criticism that goes back to the origins of economic theory and extends to recent debates surrounding postmodernism William A Jackson discusses the cultural critique of economics identifies the main arguments and assesses their implications Among the topics covered are relativism and realism idealism and materialism agency and structure hermeneutics semiotics and cultural evolution Drawing from varied literatures notably social and cultural theory the book stresses the importance of culture for economic behaviour and looks at the prospects for a renewed and culturally informed economics The book will be invaluable to heterodox economists and to anyone interested in the links between culture and the economy It takes an interdisciplinary approach arguing against the isolation of economics and will therefore hold wide appeal for social scientists working in related fields as well as for economists specialising in cultural economics and economic methodology
