Ecosystem Approaches to Landscape Management in Central Europe J.D. Tenhunen, R. Lenz, Ralph Hantschel, 2001-01-25 The challenges in ecosystem science encompass a broadening and strengthening of interdisciplinary ties the transfer of knowledge of the ecosystem across scales and the inclusion of anthropogenic impacts and human behavior into ecosystem landscape and regional models The volume addresses these points within the context of studies in major ecosystem types viewed as the building blocks of central European landscapes The research is evaluated to increase the understanding of the processes in order to unite ecosystem science with resource management The comparison embraces coastal lowland forests associated wetlands and lakes agricultural land use and montane and alpine forests Techniques for upscaling focus on process modelling at stand and landscape scales and the use of remote sensing for landscape level model parameterization and testing The case studies demonstrate ways for ecosystem scientists managers and social scientists to cooperate

Ecosystem Approaches to Landscape Management in Central Europe S. Hunter, J.D. Tenhunen, R. Lenz, R. Hantschel, 2001 Stimulated by the concern for environmental problems that arose during the 1970s and 1980s related both to global and national questions of sustainability the German government committed itself to advancing ecosystem research as a central component of planning for environment ally economically and socially sound policies and for resource management during the 21 st century Ecosystem research has been promoted at institutions spread throughout the country and that are favorably structured to conduct interdisciplinary studies Research funding is derived from both the federal union and state governments Results from the research programme at several of these institutions are summarized in this volume 1 to provide a status report on process understanding within ecosystem types that are viewed as building blocks of complex highly modified Central European landscapes 2 to document progress at institutions pursuing ecosystem science and promoting interdisciplinary approaches 3 to support the next steps in generalizing the research results e g to obtain a picture of ecosystem function in time and space or of landscape function and 4 to examine how the results may be applied to better manage natural resources and achieve sustainability

Ecosystem Organization of a Complex Landscape Otto Fränzle, Ludger Kappen, Hans-Peter Blume, Klaus Dierßen, 2008-06-24 This volume is an essential text for scientists from a huge variety of disciplines from ecologists to geographers and soil scientists It provides a synthesis of long term ecological analyses in the Bornh ved Lake District of northern Germany The emphasis is on the comprehensive assessment of matter and energy fluxes These operate in and between the terrestrial and aquatic ecosystems on the one hand and on transdisciplinary landscape planning approaches on the other

Landscape Ecological Applications in Man-Influenced Areas Sun-Kee Hong, Nobukazu Nakagoshi, Bojie Fu, Yukihiro Morimoto, 2007-01-29 Landscape Ecological Applications in Man Influenced Areas not only expands the concept of landscape ecology but also applies its principles to man influenced ecosystems New dimensions of landscape ecological research in a global change such as urbanization biodiversity and land transformation are explored in this book The book also includes case studies concerning landscape analysis and evaluation using spatial analysis and landscape modelling for establishing sustainable management strategy in urban and agricultural landscapes      Ecology of Central European Forests Christoph Leuschner, Heinz

Ellenberg, 2017-09-22 This handbook in two volumes synthesises our knowledge about the ecology of Central Europe's plant cover with its 7000 yr history of human impact covering Germany Poland the Netherlands Belgium Luxembourg Switzerland Austria Czech Republic and Slovakia Based on a thorough literature review with 5500 cited references and nearly 1000 figures and tables the two books review in 26 chapters all major natural and man made vegetation types with their climatic and edaphic influences the structure and dynamics of their communities the ecophysiology of important plant species and key aspects of ecosystem functioning Volume I deals with the forests and scrub vegetation and analyses the ecology of Central Europe's tree flora whilst Volume II is dedicated to the non forest vegetation covering mires grasslands heaths alpine habitats and urban vegetation The consequences of over use pollution and recent climate change over the last century are explored and conservation issues addressed      The Role of Biodiversity Conservation in the Transition to Rural

Sustainability Stephen S. Light, 2004 This book presents interdisciplinary advances in theory and practice pertaining to rural sustainability and sets forth an action research agenda and policy prescriptions to support rural sustainability with special emphasis on the Accession Countries to the EU The book will address four themes      Acid rain 2000 Kenichi

Biogeochemistry of Forested Catchments in a Changing Environment Egbert Matzner,2013-06-29 Forest ecosystems represent a major type of land use in Germany and in Europe They provide a number of functions or ecosystem services beneficial to humans namely biomass production regulation of the water and energy cycle C and N sequestration erosion control recreation and they act as habitat for numerous species The stability of forest ecosystems in Europe as influenced by the deposition of air pollutants has been a matter of debate for more than 20 years Besides atmospheric deposition other environmental conditions affecting forest ecosystems such as temperature CO content of the atmosphere and precipitation have significantly changed in the past and continue to change in the future Quantifying and predicting the effects of these changes on ecosystem functioning are a challenge to ecosystem research and also a requirement to establish sustainable use of forest ecosystems in the future This book summarizes results of long term interdisciplinary ecosystem research conducted in two forested catchments and coordinated at the Bayreuth Institute of Terrestrial Ecosystem Research BIT K University of Bayreuth Germany It does not aim to summarize all the research of BIT K in the past decade which would go far beyond the studies in these two catchments Instead we concentrate here on the long term developments in the biogeochemistry of carbon and mineral elements and on the water cycle at both the plot and the catchment scale Terrestrial help make predictions This book presents the current state of the art in environmental modeling and software and identifies the future challenges in the field State of the art in environmental modeling and software theory and practice for integrated assessment and management serves as a starting point for researchers Identifies the areas of research and practice required for advancing the requisite knowledge base and tools and their wider usage Best practices of environmental modeling enables the reader to select appropriate software and gives the reader tools to integrate natural system dynamics with human dimensions Alpine Biodiversity in Europe Laszlo Nagy,Georg Grabherr,Christian Körner,Desmond B.A.

Thompson,2003-06-12 The United Nations Conference on the Environment and Development UNCED held in Rio de Janeiro in 1992 spawned a multitude of programmes aimed at assessing managing and conserving the earth s biological diversity One important issue addressed at the conference was the mountain environment A specific feature of high mountains is the so called alpine zone i e the treeless regions at the uppermost reaches Though covering only a very small proportion of the land surface the alpine zone contains a relatively large number of plants animals fungi and microbes which are specifically adapted to cold environments This zone contributes fundamentally to the planet s biodiversity and provides many resources for mountain dwelling as well as lowland people However rapid and largely man made changes are affecting mountain ecosystems such as soil erosion losses of habitat and genetic diversity and climate change all of which have to be addressed As stated in the European Community Biodiversity Strategy the global scale of biodiversity reduction or losses and the interdependence of different species and ecosystems across national borders demands concerted international action Managing biodiversity in a rational and sustainable way needs basic knowledge on its qualitative and quantitative aspects at local regional and global scales This is particularly true for mountains which are distributed throughout the world and are indeed hot spots of biodiversity in absolute terms as well as relative to the surrounding lowlands Perspectives for Agroecosystem Management: Peter Schroder,J. Pfadenhauer,J. Munch,2011-08-19 Sustainable agriculture is a key concept for scientists researchers and agricultural engineers alike This book focuses on the FAM project FAM Munich Research Network on Agroecosystems of the 1990s as a means to assessing forecasting and evaluating changes in the agroecosystems that are necessary for agricultural sustainability The management of two separate management systems an organic and an integrated farming system are described to provide an interdisciplinary approach Changes of matter fluxes in soils changes of trace gas fluxes from soils precision farming in a small scale heterogen landscape influence of management changes on flora and fauna as well as the development of agroecosystem models the assessment of soil variability and the changes in nutrient status are important aspects of this book Contains detailed results and insight of a long time project on agricultural sustainability Provides an interdisciplinary approach for comprehensive understanding by scientists and researchers of soil plants agriculture and environment Includes an international perspective Reindeer Management in Northernmost Europe Bruce C. Forbes,Manfred Bölter,Ludger Müller-Wille,Janne Hukkinen,Felix Müller,Nicolas Gunsley,Yulian Konstantinov, 2006-03-09 The findings presented in this volume represent a concerted effort to develop a more inclusive form of reindeer management for northernmost Europe. Our guiding principle has been to foster a new paradigm of participatory research. We wish to move beyond the historical reliance on western approaches to basic and applied science. These have been concerned primarily with interactions between herded animals and the various components of their biophysical environment e.g. plants, insects, predators, climate, and others. In our view, sociocultural and economic drivers along with herders' experience-based knowledge gain equal currency in the effort to understand how management may mitigate against the negative aspects of the challenges modern herding faces while also exploring concepts of sustainability from different perspectives (see also Jernsletten and Klokov 2002, Kankaanpää et al. 2002, Ulvevadet and Klokov 2004). This broadening of the pool of disciplines and local, national and international stakeholders in policy-relevant research invariably complicates virtually all aspects of the research process. Multidisciplinary or in our sense transdisciplinary approaches also require extraordinary effort from all participants if they are to succeed. As such, those approaches should not be undertaken lightly nor without personnel who possess appropriate experience in cooperating with those of different disciplines and preferably also with relevant practitioners and public, social and administrative institutions. In such settings, the potential for misunderstandings is quite high.

Forest Development Achim Dohrenbusch, Norbert Bartsch, 2012-12-06 Forest ecosystems are characterized by a steady change in their structure of function. Natural developments are more and more radically disturbed by human impact. Air pollution leads to soil acidification, change in nutrient budget and to a decreasing vitality of the trees. Forest management can prevent natural succession and often leads to less stable forests. In this book, selected results of 10 years of interdisciplinary ecosystem research are presented. Not only growth and physiological reactions on environmental stress but also natural succession processes are described and analysed. Besides the description of forest development processes based on long-term experiments and observation, conclusions for practical forest management are given.
