WOMEN AND SOCIAL WORK IN CENTRAL AND EASTERN EUROPE

Darja Zaviršek

Introduction

This chapter focuses on the importance of women's agency in the development of professional social work, social welfare activities, and social work education in Yugoslavia during the interwar and Communist periods (1920–40 and 1945–91, respectively).¹ Setting the Yugoslav case in comparison with that of the Soviet Union, this chapter will examine the processes by which Yugoslavia's Communist leadership established a system of social work education in the 1950s, with key roles played by women in its founding. However, the Communist Party then closely supervised women's activities and legitimized gender inequality. In spite of women's significant contributions to public health and social innovation in the drive to modernize the predominantly rural countries of central and eastern Europe, their work was ignored by the leadership of newly developed Communist states.

Cold War methodology in the history of social work

The history of social work in central and eastern Europe has been dominated by two methodological fallacies: one, that men were the founders of the profession; and two, that the development of professional social work in eastern Europe was the same in all Communist countries. The latter has been described by some researchers as "Cold War methodology." The major characteristics of Cold War methodology are, first of all, the construction of eastern Europe as a homogenous entity, and second, the production (whether deliberate or unintentional) of the alterity of its peoples. Until the late 1990s, most researchers believed that professional social work had been something of a modern humanist mission, imported from the west only after the collapse of Communism. Most western academics share the oversimplified view that in denouncing "western" bourgeois ideas, Communist nations also dismissed the Conference Report, 1996 Dimensions Européennes de la Formation Et de la Pratique Des Professions Sociales Ewa Marynowicz-Hetka, Antonin Wagner, Jacek Piekarski, 1999 The Cost of Reform John F. Jones, Asfaw Kumssa, 2000 This book is about the social impact of reform in the transitional economies of Europe Asia and Africa Whatever the advantages of adopting a market orientation and there are many the countries which have taken this road have had a high price to pay If one were to ask a Siberian miner or a Ukrainian woman selling vegetables in a village market whether the switch from socialism to capitalism was worth the rewards the question would likely evoke complaints about months of unpaid wages or persistent poverty The disappearance of the iron rice bowl in China draws praise from the neoclassic economist looking on from the outside but for the displaced worker going from city to city in search of employment the reaction will not be so enthusiastic In the move from central planning to a market economy there have been winners and losers The winners are those in a position to use the changing economic circumstances to their advantage and those having access to the goods and services of the market But there are also among the poor and vulnerable groups consistent losers in the shuffling of opportunities rewards and costs The problems of people caught in economic reform are acute whether the emerging economies are shaped by sudden revolution from within as in Eastern Europe and Mongolia or by international pressure from outside frequently at the urging of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund IMF as in some African countries or by the gradualism of socialist market systems like China Vietnam or Laos The social consequences of transition are significant and they form the principal concern and focus of this volume Its contributors both authors and editors recognize globalization and the technological revolution already in place and acknowledge the necessity for national economies to take advantage of the new freedoms and opportunities which the twenty first century heralds But while endorsing the efforts of countries to liberalize to build their markets and share the benefits of a world economy the book's various authors are primarily concerned with the socioeconomic consequences of transition on the lives of people The country case studies they present examine that impact
