Toward a New Science of Educational Testing and Assessment Harold Berlak,Fred M. Newmann,Elizabeth

Adams,Doug A. Archbald,Tyrell Burgess,John Raven,1992-02-06 The authors of this book question the assumptions of the psychometric paradigm that underlie virtually all criterion referenced and standardized tests used in North American schools They make a compelling case for a new science of educational testing and assessment one that shifts decision making from central administration to individual schools and communities Harold Berlak argues that the concept of tests as scientific instruments validated by technical experts is anachronistic and self contradictory He makes a case for a contextual paradigm an approach which assumes that consensus on educational goals and national testing programs is neither possible nor desireable Assessment practices in a democratic society must acknowledge and affirm differences in values beliefs and material interests among individuals and groups over the purposes and practices of schooling     Educational Assessment of Students Anthony J. Nitko,2004 A highly respected book in its field The Educational Assessment of Students 4 e is the most thorough discussion of traditional and alternative assessments of any text explaining giving practical real world examples discussing pros and cons and showing how to construct virtually all of the choices teachers can make in classroom assessment Theories and research findings abound the author examines why when and how teachers should use assessment in the classroom Topics include the bases for assessment in the classroom crafting and using classroom assessments and interpreting and using standardized tests With its extensive and valuable appendix set this book is a must have desk reference for teachers and others involved in the field of education     Educational Testing and Measurement Tom Kubiszyn,Gary D.
