Education In A Post Welfare Society:

Education in a Post-welfare Society Sally Tomlinson, 2005 This is the second edition of Education in a Post Welfare Society first published in 2001 which provided a critical overview of education policy since 1945 a period during which governments in the UK particularly in England moved from creating and sustaining a welfare state to promoting a post welfare society dominated by private enterprise and competitive markets The first edition took readers through a descriptive review of Acts reports and events in education 1945 2000 placing in context the avalanche of legislation and initiatives that have reformed education into a competitive enterprise in which young people learn to compete locally nationally and globally This edition continues the policy story up to 2005 and covers two terms of a New Labour government and their plans for a third term It also continues an examination of the relationship of education policy to social class race gender and the economy The book continues to demonstrate how a relatively decentralised education system became a system in which funding teaching and curriculum are centrally controlled and privatisation encouraged with education being narrowed to an economic function becoming a prop for global market economy rather than a pillar of welfare state Chronologies of education acts reports and initiatives are provided at the beginning of the first seven chapters major legislation is summarised and suggestions for further reading made Chapters on the middle classes and education the relationship of policy to race gender and disability and education and the economy follow The book is an invaluable resource for all those concerned with social policy and education including educational researchers professionals and politicians

Education in a Post-welfare Society Sally Tomlinson, 2001 A critical overview of education policy as government in Britain has moved from creating a welfare state to promoting a post welfare society dominated by private enterprise and competitive markets Concentrating particularly on the last 20 years the author places in context the avalanche of legislation and documentation that has reformed education into a competitive enterprise in which young people learn to compete She also demonstrates how a relatively decentralized education system became a system in which funding teaching and curriculum were centrally controlled and education narrowed to an economic function

Education In A Post Welfare Society Tomlinson, Sally, 2005-11-01 Providing a critical overview of education policy since 1945 this book includes chronologies of education acts reports and initiatives and summaries of major legislation

Education in a Post-welfare Society Sally Tomlinson, 2001

The Politics of Race, Class and Special Education Sally Tomlinson, 2014-05-09 In the World Library of Educationalists series international experts themselves compile career long collections of what they judge to be their finest pieces extracts from books key articles salient research findings major theoretical and practical contributions so the world can read them in a single manageable volume Readers will be able to follow the themes and strands and see how their work contributes to the development of the field Professor Sally Tomlinson brings together 12 of her key writings in one place including chapters from her best selling books and articles from leading journals In this landmark publication she reviews and recounts the history and development of her research and writing over 30 years that is concerned with the politics of education systems especially special education and the place of social classes and ethnic and racial minorities in the systems. Social class, race and gender have historically always been essential markers in deciding who would receive a minimum or inferior education and thus fail to obtain whatever were currently acceptable qualifications. Definitions of the less able or ineducable were based on beliefs in the biological and cultural inferiority of lower social classes, racial and immigrant groups. Professor Tomlinson's aim in her work has always been to introduce sociological, historical and political perspectives into an area dominated by psychological, administrative and technical views and to explain how the individual problems were connected to wider social structures and policies. This unique collection illustrates the development of Professor Tomlinson's thinking over the course of her long and esteemed career.

Journeys through Childhood Studies Ingrid Richter, 2019-07-10
Investigating the experiences of a group of female students as they journey into and through higher education and into work with and for children, Journeys through Childhood Studies offers a critical analysis of the intersectional influences and effects of social division on experiences of higher education and career trajectories. The book explores the influences of gender, race and class on the experiences of higher education and the development of professional identities and whether the professionalisation of work in relation to children and childhood opens up opportunities for career development or narrows the range of choices available to women. Adopting a distinctive qualitative approach to track strategies used by women participants to accommodate the changing terrain of their journeys, this book demonstrates how the women's pathways to university are shaped by factors such as social divisions, friends, family and school and their experiences of working with children. Featuring detailed interviews, Journeys through Childhood Studies offers an insightful exploration of the construction and practices of the Children's Workforce. It is a must-read for academics, postgraduate students and those researching Childhood Studies, professional identities and experiences of higher education.

School Without Walls: Inclusive Education For All Jha, Madan Mohan, 2007
In School Without Walls: Inclusive Education For All, author Madan Mohan Jha analyses the policy framework in the context of equity, rights and social justice, tracing the roots of inclusive education. This book presents modes of practices for developing inclusive schools for children with disabilities, learning difficulties and disadvantages which will be of great value to teachers, trainers, educators and educational practitioners.

The State and Education Policy: The Academies Programme Helen M. Gunter, 2010-12-16
This collection draws together contributions from leading researchers and participants to explore a major reform process of the state and education system in particular. The shift from welfare-based provision of public services to the quasi-market with private delivery and philanthropic investment is an issue that needs a thorough examination through evidence and rigorous argument. This book seeks to do this by not only charting events and providing detailed examination about what is happening but also by locating these developments within a contemporary political and social analytical framework. Topics covered include the legal and political process of establishing Academies the working and impact of Academies using a range of data and perspectives the debates and issues regarding this major reform with comparative perspectives The State and Education Policy shows how the Academies Programme in England is an important site for examining the growth of neoliberal ideas and practices in the framing and delivery of public services such as education

Gender, Management and Leadership

in Initial Teacher Education Barbara Thompson, 2016-10-26 This book highlights the difficulties that women working as managers and leaders in initial teacher education face Teacher education is at the forefront of education reforms and yet little is known about the professional lives of those who work within it Whereas many women are moving into positions of authority in teacher training some existing women managers are being marginalized within new internally differentiated layers of managerial structures Yet other female managers mainly new appointees seem to endorse the discourses associated with new managerialist practices Simultaneously some women who manage in teacher training are engaged in a struggle for survival individually and professionally In the main men seem to be missing from authority positions and will conclude that in the current climate the management of teacher training is no job for a man

Citizenship and Higher Education

James Arthur, Karen Bohlin, 2005-03-16 This comparative text considers models of higher education in the UK and the US and individuals' perceptions about the role of university in society
