Education In New France:

Education in New France Roger Magnuson,1992-06-22 The first priority of French missionaries was the conversion of the native population Education was an important tool in the evangelization campaign because they believed that conversion was best secured when preceded and underscored by religious instruction As Canada evolved into a French colony the religious orders increasingly turned their attention to the education of the children of French settlers The period saw the establishment of a number of petites coles elementary schools a Jesuit college for boys and several trade schools As Magnuson demonstrates provision for education in the colony declined during the eighteenth century First membership in religious orders dwindled reducing their capacity to serve the educational needs of an expanding population Second as the population of the colony grew with more inhabitants born in Canada than in France different values and priorities developed The written word notes Magnuson held less attraction for the Canadian who preferred the active life of the frontier A Brief History of Quebec Education Roger Magnuson,1980 Encyclopedia of Women and Religion in North America: Women and religion: methods of study and reflection Rosemary Skinner Keller,Rosemary Radford Ruether,Marie Cantlon,2006 A fundamental and well illustrated reference collection for anyone interested in the role of women in North American religious life Education in the Province of Quebec Roger Magnuson,1969 The Education of Children in New France ,2002 As part of Virtual Museum of New France on the Canadian Museum of Civilization website this site presents the history and motives for educating children in New France a French colony in Canada by the Jesuits in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Describes the composition and content of the schools and the successes and failures encountered in educating the children of New France Indian Education in Canada, Volume 1 Jean Barman,Yvonne Hébert,Don McCaskill,2011-11-01 The two volumes comprising Indian Education in Canada present the first full length discussion of this important subject since the adoption in 1972 of a new federal policy moving toward Indian control of Indian education Volume 1 analyzes the education of Indian children by whites since the arrival of the first Europeans in Canada Volume 2 is concerned with the wide ranging changes that have taken place since 1972 Schooling, Jobs, and Cultural Identity Linda Susan Kahn,1992 Anthropologist Kahn tests the cultural ecological theory of minority education that the school performance of minorities will change to reflect changes in socio economic cultural and political subordination The data is from a neighborhood in Montreal in the early 1980s and focuses on French spe Edaucation in the Province of Quebec United States. Education Office,1969 The Peripatetic Journey of Teacher Preparation in Canada Rosa Bruno-Jofré,Joseph Stafford,2020-10-12 This book situates teacher training preparation and education in Canada within national and global histories The authors lead the reader through an exploration of the objectives of schooling the contextual role of teachers and the political undercurrents sustaining various educational conceptions and policies The Curriculum History of Canadian Teacher Education Theodore Michael Christou,2017-08-07 Organized by region this edited collection provides a comprehensive look at how teacher education has evolved regionally and nationally in Canada. Offering an in depth look at specific provinces and territories, this volume contextualizes the landscape of Canadian public education and the place of teacher education within it. Shedding light on the ways Canadian teacher education was shaped by and in turn influenced its environment, contributors evaluate the current state of education and consider themes, tensions, and historical developments, presenting a view of teacher education that encompasses both its future and its past. A significant contribution to the field of curriculum history, this book offers a benchmark for conversations about the purposes, means, and ends of teacher education in Canada.

Canada's Residential Schools: The History, Part 1, Origins to 1939 Commission de vérité et réconciliation du Canada, 2016-01-01. Between 1867 and 2000, the Canadian government sent over 150,000 Aboriginal children to residential schools across the country. Government officials and missionaries agreed that in order to civilize and Christianize Aboriginal children, it was necessary to separate them from their parents and their home communities. For children, life in these schools was lonely and alien. Discipline was harsh, and daily life was highly regimented. Aboriginal languages and cultures were denigrated and suppressed. Education and technical training too often gave way to the drudgery of doing the chores necessary to make the schools self-sustaining. Child neglect was institutionalized, and the lack of supervision created situations where students were prey to sexual and physical abusers. Legal action by the schools' former students led to the creation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada in 2008. The product of over six years of research, the Commission's final report outlines the history and legacy of the schools and charts a pathway towards reconciliation.

Canada's Residential Schools: The History, Part 1, Origins to 1939 places Canada's residential school system in the historical context of European campaigns to colonize and convert Indigenous people throughout the world. In post-Confederation Canada, the government adopted what amounted to a policy of cultural genocide, suppressing spiritual practices, disrupting traditional economies, and imposing new forms of government. Residential schooling quickly became a central element in this policy. The destructive intent of the schools was compounded by chronic underfunding and ongoing conflict between the federal government and the church missionary societies that had been given responsibility for their day-to-day operation. A failure of leadership and resources meant that the schools failed to control the tuberculosis crisis that gripped the schools for much of this period. Alarmed by high death rates, Aboriginal parents often refused to send their children to the schools, leading the government to adopt ever more coercive attendance regulations. While parents became subject to ever more punitive regulations, the government did little to regulate discipline, diet, fire safety, or sanitation at the schools. By the period's end, the government was presiding over a nationwide series of firetraps that had no clear educational goals and were economically dependent on the unpaid labour of underfed and often sickly children.
