Handbook of Political Leadership Billie Bender, 2019-08-09 Leadership is an increasingly relevant area of research especially for social scientists Leadership in rural areas of developing societies has acquired more importance in the era of globalization Political leadership is a concept central to understanding political processes and outcomes yet its definition is elusive Many disciplines have contributed to the study of leadership including political theory history psychology and management studies Political leadership has made a comeback It was studied intensively not only by political scientists but also by political sociologists and psychologists Sovietologists political anthropologists and by scholars in comparative and development studies from the 1940s to the 1970s Thereafter the field lost its way with the rise of structuralism neo institutionalism and rational choice approaches to the study of politics government and governance Understanding and measuring political leadership is a complex business Though we all have ideals of what makes a good leader they are often complex contradictory and more than a little partisan The world is full of aspiring political leaders but sadly very few live up to the leadership ideals In fact many political leaders seem to severely lack some of the most important leadership qualities such as integrity and accountability It is no coincidence that for many people the word politician has such negative connotations However history and present day shows us that there are still a few who come close to the leadership ideals and who are good examples of an effective political leader In this book quality of leadership which played a dynamic role in the political has been analysed of the higher education and the rapid privatisation of the education sector have now created concerns over financing education and ensuring its equitable access. The volume discusses the challenges faced by aspiring students to meet the rising cost of higher education as educational policies increasingly favour marketisation of higher education. It sheds light on several alternative and innovative methods of financing with a focus on educational loans to highlight how inequities and inequalities affect access to educational loans in countries like India. The book thus explores how this impacts students from the deprived disadvantaged sections of the society who are unable to access courses and institutions of their choice and therefore remain unsuitable to get absorbed in the evolving market economy. An incisive read on the economics of education in India, this book will be useful for scholars and researchers of education, higher education, public policy, sociology, development studies, political science and governance as well as for the policy makers.

Representing the Margin Ajay S. Sekher, 2008. The work explores the representation of socio-cultural margins of caste and gender in Indian contexts in works of fiction written in various Indian languages in the twentieth century, taking representative samples from Hindi, Urdu, Bengali, Kannada, Malayalam and English. The focus of enquiry is the narrativization of these important cultural and political questions in representative texts of fiction. What are the socio-political and cultural implications and underpinnings of the representation of marginalization in the medium and genre of fiction? What could be the politics, ethics and aesthetics of such narrating? How far such representations are subversive or consensual complicit? What are the limitations and pitfalls of such intervening radicalism in fictional narration? All these questions are taken up in detail in the analyses. In the greater sense, this study is also a critique of modernity and its discontents as it analyses the dialectics of modernity, its radical as well as reactionary aspects. A problematic premise of contextualizing the text and textualizing the context would also be prominent in the attempt. Fictional texts from five Indian languages including English, two texts from each language are incorporated in the study to ensure regional and linguistic representation within the limits of the availability of works in translation. Questions of class analytical perspectives in the context of Brahmanic patriarchy are explicated and critiqued. The need for a subaltern hermeneutics and the urgency of epistemological democratization are also discussed as a political and emancipatory outcome of the study. Both the formal as well as thematic concerns of the novel in the Indian languages are found to be shaped and determined by the material realities and associated attitudes and worldviews of caste and gender hierarchy emanating from internal imperialism. Though the ten texts chosen attempt intense critique of the gender question, the more profound and specific cultural question of caste evades comprehension and critical understanding. Caste often escapes as the unrepresentable in narration as it is in conversion.
