Hazardous Decisions The Netherlands And Hazardous Waste Siting In The U K:

Hazardous Decisions D. Huitema, 2005-12-15 where Jeremy Richardson Albert Weale and Hugh Ward were excellent hosts at the Department of Government and Thomas Christiansen a very good roommate Having included the UK as a country where decision processes were far less participatory and thus worse in my own view than those in the Netherlands I started doing my first interviews there which were mainly intended to identify suitable case studies for research But then I read a highly critical review of a book that had a similar topic as my study The critique was that cases of hazardous waste siting cannot adequately be studied without understanding their national context This made me decide to devote some attention to the legal context of hazardous waste siting in the three countries of interest which is of course only a part of the national context and its development through the years The study of the UK system of environmental regulation and land use planning was not a simple issue and I was warned various times for instance by Andrew Blowers at the Open University that the legislation was highly complex and easily misinterpreted I felt personally touched by such warnings and decided that I should perhaps approach the UK system a bit less as an evil empire and maybe be a bit more objective in my appraisals

Public Participation and Better Environmental Decisions Frans H. J. M. Coenen, 2008-12-12 Public Participation and Better Environmental Decisions is about a specific promise that participation holds for environmental decision making Many of the arguments for public participation in inter national environmental policy documents are functional that is to say they see public participation as a means to an end Sound solutions to environmental problems require participation beyond experts and political elites Neglecting information from the public leads to legitimacy questions and potential conflicts There is a discourse in the literature and in policy practice as to whether decision making improves in quality as additional relevant information by the public is considered The promise that public participation holds has to be weighed against the limitations of public participation in terms of costs and interest conflicts The question that Public Participation and Better Environmental Decisions seeks to answer for academics planners and civil servants in all environmental relevant policy fields is What restricts and what enables information to hold the promise that public participation lead to better environmental decision making and better outcomes

Denters, Oscar van Heffen, J. Huisman, P.J. Klok, 2013-06-29 It has taken a long time to make this book Many initial drafts of the chapters published in this book were presented in November 2000 during a two day conference on Interactive governance towards a post parliamentary democracy held in Enschede The Netherlands The Netherlands Institute of Governance NIG sponsored the conference After this conference the organisers discussed the possibility of making a book on the basis of papers presented at this event In the end it was agreed that such a publication would indeed be worthwhile provided the initial papers were fundamentally revised Moreover it was agreed that also supplementary chapters should be included in order to strengthen the international comparative perspective On this basis authors of the conference papers chapters and envisioned new chapters were invited to re submit drafts The completion of the book however was unexpectedly halted by the tragic sudden death of our co editor and dear friend Oscar van Heffen In his lifetime he was the driving force behind this project Without his efforts insightful comments and helpful suggestions this book in its present form would never have been published As such we dedicate this volume to his memory the completion of the book being an honorary debt to our friend and his wife Mirjan

Handbook of Risk Theory Rafaela Hillerbrand,Per Sandin,Martin Peterson,2012-01-12 Risk has become one of the main topics in fields as diverse as engineering medicine and economics and it is also studied by social scientists psychologists and legal scholars But the topic of risk also leads to more fundamental questions such as What is risk What can decision theory contribute to the analysis of risk What does the human perception of risk mean for society How should we judge whether a risk is morally acceptable or not Over the last couple of decades questions like these have attracted interest from philosophers and other scholars into risk theory This handbook provides for an overview into key topics in a major new field of research It addresses a wide range of topics ranging from decision theory risk perception to ethics and social implications of risk and it also addresses specific case studies It aims to promote communication and information among all those who are interested in theoretical issues concerning risk and uncertainty This handbook brings together internationally leading philosophers and scholars from other disciplines who work on risk theory The contributions are accessibly written and highly relevant to issues that are studied by risk scholars We hope that the Handbook of Risk Theory will be a helpful starting point for all risk scholars who are interested in broadening and deepening their current perspectives

Participation and the Quality of Environmental Decision Making F. Coenen, D. Huitema, Laurence J. O'Toole Jr., 2012-12-06 It is clear that our society must become a more sustainable one To that end we must change both our production and our consumption patterns Some argue that this implies the abolition of democratic processes and thus of citizens participation in environmental policy Others argue the opposite the only way to avoid impending environmental disaster is by engaging in common deliberation and contemplation Is participation then a negative force or not This volume is one of the first coordinated attempts to study the relationship between democratic participatory forms of decision making and the quality of environmental decisions The central question is how can the normatively desirable practice of participatory decision making be combined with an effective approach to environmental issues Guided by a theoretical introduction by the editors the 15 chapters deal with topics ranging from the scale of environmental problems local agenda 21 infrastructural decisions strategic planning to environmental policy in developing countries Three chapters are devoted to each of these broad themes Each presents either a theoretical or an empirical argument about the central research question shedding light on such issues as the measurement of decision quality participation techniques and the link between participation and decision quality drawing on experience gained in Europe North and South America Asia and Africa The introductions to the individual parts of the book have been collectively written by the contributors who represent a range of professional disciplines including political science public policy and planning

Negotiating Environmental Change F. Berkhout, 2003-01-01 The ESRC GEC programme has made a major contribution in terms of environmental social science research The chapters in this book provide incisive detailed and reflective critiques of the development of knowledge over the last ten years and provide powerful and important messages about the challenges presented by the complex relationship between environmental and social change The book should be essential reading for all researchers and also for all policymakers who are grappling with questions about how to respond to environment society controversies Judith Petts

Birmingham University UK and Member of the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution Global environmental change will be with us forever But how it happens in the future and with what effect on the planet and its peoples depends to a large extent on how the international agreements national politics and local actions play out This collection provides the most comprehensive assessment yet of these critical interconnections and reveals how social scientists are making an invaluable contribution to the creation of more science and just livelihoods in a future world Tim O Riordan University of East Anglia UK

An aphrodisiac to the tepid response of positivist social science People are not merely actors perpetrators and victims in an environmental drama The critical social theorists in this book constructively show us how people are improvising the stage and the script as we update our understanding of nature what constitutes a good life and our individual and collective options Richard B Norgaard University of California Berkeley US

Negotiating Environmental Change is a child of the ESRCs Global Environmental Change Programme by far the biggest piece of work by social scientists in the United Kingdom during the 1990s At the beginning of the twenty first century the balance sheet needs to be drawn up what do our policies insights and values owe to the collaborative efforts of social scientists This book suggests that ideas and approaches that were conceived at a time when the Ozone Hole Global Warming and Biodiversity Losses were beginning to resonate in academic and policy circles have now entered the British and European psyche The challenge of forward thinking in the twenty first century in which the environment is central to most of the issues that concern social science is to demonstrate that the environment is not a separate territory Environmental thinking and practice affects us in various guises governance and democracy business and management risk and everyday consumption the substance of this book

Negotiating Environmental Change makes clear the contribution that new thinking is making to problems that were not looked upon as environmental a decade ago but which we now see as being at the forefront of global research and policy agendas Michael Redclift King s College London UK

Major advances have been made recently in environmental social science but the context and importance of this research has also changed Social and natural science studies of the environment have begun to interact more closely with each other and many analysts now agree that an understanding of environmental problems often depends on an understanding of the attitudes and behaviour of people and organisations Moreover policy and public debates have also shown that many assumptions that underpin arguments about sustainable development need to be reconsidered and re framed This book by leading researchers presents a critical review of debates in environmental social science over the past decade Three broad areas are covered in ten chapters the problems of scientific uncertainty and its role in shaping environmental policy and decisions the development of institutional frameworks for governing natural resources and the link between economic and technological change and the environment The book begins with an overview essay exam

The Evolution of National Water Regimes in Europe Stefan Kuks, Ingrid Kissling-Näf, 2013-06-05 All over the world countries struggle with water stress Problems vary from water scarcity and a degrading water quality to floods and a rising sea level due to climate change

The European Union adopted a Water Framework Directive to improve the sustainability of water management in its member states. Water management should be coordinated at the level of river basins as a whole. Interests of various user groups should be better represented. River basin visions should take into account the impact of all human activities on the status of the resource. Water legislation needs streamlining and more focus on its implementation. The European Union advocates regulating water prices by charging the costs of water services on the basis of full cost recovery and the polluter pays principle. This book examines the development of water management in the Netherlands, Belgium, France, Spain, Italy, and Switzerland. It is based on the European research project EUWARENESS. The authors apply a theoretical framework for the analysis of institutional regimes, water governance, and property rights. The evolution of national water resource regimes is described over a period of almost 200 years, 1800–2000. The long term perspective enables the reader to see the conditions under which regime transformation and paradigm change are made possible. The book also includes a critical analysis of policy making by the European Union and a comparative review and analysis of regime development in the six countries involved. This book is followed by another volume published with Kluwer Academic Publishers on Integrated Governance and Water Basin Management, edited by Hans Bressers and Stefan Kuks.

Environmental and Technology Policy in Europe
G.J. Schrama, S. Sedlacek, 2013-03-09. This book contains six studies on various national environmental policies and environment oriented technology policy systems in Austria, Denmark, Germany, the Netherlands, Spain, and the United Kingdom, sandwiched between this introductory and a concluding chapter. These studies were conducted as part of the ENVINNO research project 'Towards an Integration of Environmental and Ecology Oriented Technology Policy: Stimulus and Response in Environment Related Innovation Networks', which formed part of the Targeted Social and Economic Research TSER Programme of Directorate General XII of the European Commission, now 1 Directorate General for Research. We like to thank Mrs Genevieve Zdrojewski of GD Directorate General Research for her kind support of our research project. The project was carried out between 1998 and 2001 by research teams from the six countries. The co-ordinating institute was the Department of Environmental Economics and Management at the Vienna University of Economics and Business Administration. At this place we want to mention all researchers involved in the ENVINNO project and we want to thank them all for their contributions to this book and the project and for the good time we have had performing the project and meeting each other at regular intervals in Vienna.

International Environmental Law and Policy in Africa
B. Chaytor, K.R. Gray, 2013-11-11. I welcome the opportunity to prepare a Foreword to the book on Environmental Policy and Law in Africa, edited by Kevin R Gray and Beatrice Chaytor. It is a pleasure to do that because the book is a contribution to the cause of capacity building for development and implementation of environmental law in Africa a goal towards which I have had an undivided focus over the last two decades There is still some belief in and outside Africa that for developing countries in general and Africa in particular development and implementation of environmental law is not a priority This belief prevails strongly in many quarters of the industrialised countries In fact the view is held either out of blatant ignorance or by some renegade industrialists who fail to appreciate Michael Royston s 1979 thesis that Pollution Prevention Pays 2 That group for obvious reasons must have their correspondent counterparts in Africa to provide hope that industries rejected as derelict in the West or inoperable due to rigorous environmental regulation can find homes to which they can escape and dump their polluting industries

An Institutional Basis for Environmental Stewardship D.A. Fuchs, 2013-03-09 What is the role of government in environmental politics and policy The answer to this question used to be relatively clear Government was to regulate the environmental performance of state and non state actors to set standards impose charges and establish more or less stringent criteria of acceptable behavior With the increasing appearance of the issues of globalization and global governance in the political science literature however the focus has turned to the role of non state actors Academic research and the popular debate have identified business non governmental organizations NGOs and civil society as such as increasingly important and potentially powerful actors in the political arena At the same time some observers have proclaimed the influence of government to be declining Others have argued that the role of government primarily is changing rather than declining Those who adopt the latter perspective postulate that the new role for government in this changing political and socio economic context is to set the framework for action In this perspective government is still of fundamental importance for the functioning of the society the economy and political decision making but its role is different in that government merely provides the institutional framework facilitating desired outcomes

Integrated Governance and Water Basin Management Stefan Kuks, Hans Bressers, 2012-11-03 This book examines water management integration in the Netherlands Belgium France Spain Italy and Switzerland based on the European research project EUWARENESS Coverage includes 12 country specific case studies examining theory on water governance institutional regimes and property rights resulting in a tool for monitoring the progress of integrated water management at the basin level in EU member states or other countries

Governance of Water-Related Conflicts in Agriculture F.M. Brouwer, I. Heinz, T. Zabel, 2013-03-14 This book deals with voluntary approaches between farmers and water suppliers as an instrument to meet environmental standards impacted by agricultural activities more economically efficient and environmentally effective than by exclusive application of alternative instruments including command and control approaches The book is based largely on the results of the research project Co operative Agreements in Agriculture as an Instrument to Improve the Economic Efficiency and Economic Effectiveness of the European Water Policy which was supplemented for specific issues by key experts The research was partly funded by the European Commission under the Specific RTD Programme in the Field of Environment and

Climate Contract No ENV4 CT98 0782 and partly by the Ministry of Agriculture Nature Management and Fisheries in the Netherlands the Environment Agency in England and Wales the UK Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food and the Government of the German Bundesland North Rhine Westphalia Additional funds for preparing the book were obtained from the Ministry of Agriculture Nature Management and Fisheries in the Netherlands The financial and technical support received from the different organisations is gratefully acknowledged The editors appreciate very much the efforts the authors have made in preparing their contributions for the book and for the secretarial assistance provided by Mrs Tessa van Dongen from LEI who took responsibility for guiding the publication process and preparing the chapters of the book We also appreciate the support given by Mrs Henny Hoogervorst and Mrs Gloria Verhey Kluwer Academic Publishers
