Post-Wall German Cinema and National History Mary-Elizabeth O'Brien, 2014 German history films that focus on utopianism and political dissent and their effect on German identity since 1989 Since unification a radical shift has taken place in Germans view of their country's immediate past with 1989 replacing 1945 as the primary caesura The cold war division the failed socialist state the 68 student movement and the Red Army Faction historical flashpoints involving political oppression civil disobedience and the longing for utopian solutions to social injustice have come to be seen as decisive moments in a collective history that unites East and West even as it divides them Telling stories about a shared past establishing foundational myths and finding commonalities of experience are pivotal steps in the construction of national identity Such nation building is always incomplete but the cinema provides an important forum in which notions of German history and national identity can be consumed negotiated and contested This book looks at history films made since 1989 exploring how utopianism and political dissent have shaped German identity It studies the genre including popular successes critical successes and perceived failures as a set of texts and a discursive network gauging which conventions and storylines are resilient At issue is the overriding question to what extent do these films contribute to a narrative that legitimizes the German nation state Mary Elizabeth O'Brien is Professor of German and The Courtney and Steven Ross Chair in Interdisciplinary Studies at Skidmore College
