Enzymes Receptors And Carriers Of Biological Membranes A Laboratory Manual:

Enzymes, Receptors, and Carriers of Biological Membranes A. Azzi, U. Brodbeck, P. Zahler, 2012-12-06 This manual follows at a distance of 3 years the previous one entitled Membrane Proteins and like its predecessor it is the result of an International Advanced Course sponsored by FEBS SKMB and SNG which was held in Bern in September 1983 The experiments offered to the students in the course had to be largely up dated or chosen from new areas of membrane research because of the substantial and rapid development of the field Using the protocols of the course the participants graduate students postdoctoral fellows and also senior scientists in most cases not at all expert in biomembrane research were able to repeat all the experiments successfully Those few protocols which for some reason did not fulfill the role we expected were modified These protocols have now been collected in this manual which we are able to offer to a number of biology biochemistry and biophysics laboratories hoping that the selected number of methods which have been successfully used during the Advanced Course may be useful to them This manual is also intended for teachers of practical classes who may use it as a text book and as source of selected references collected not in the library but in the laboratory from the notebooks of the young researchers who have contributed so much to the success of the Course Yeast Genetics John F.T.

Spencer, Dorothy M. Spencer, I.J. Bruce, 2012-12-06 The manual consists of two main sections The first includes the essential sometimes laborious procedures for handling yeasts for inducing mating and isolation of hybrids for inducing sporulation and isolation of single spore clones with some details of tetrad analysis and including techniques and ancillary equipment for use of the micromanipulator There are also procedures for induction of mutants by physical and chemical agents and for isolation of particular types of mutants such as to temperature sensitivity for increased frequency of mutations for mutations in the mitochondrial genome both to the petite colonie form and to resistance to antibiotics for mutations in that part of the yeast genome controlling the glycolytic cycle and numerous others Mapping of mutations is discussed briefly though this aspect of yeast genetics is probably one which should not be undertaken until the investigator has gained a certain amount of experience in the field However as is pointed out in the pertinent part of the manual the task of mapping has been tremendously simplified by the availability from the Yeast Genetics Stock Center at the University of California at Berkeley of a set of auxotrophic strains designed to permit mapping of most unknown genes with a minimum number of crosses and tetrad analyses The first section concludes with the description of methods for hybridization of yeasts by protoplast fusion which has been described as the poor man's system for genetic engineering Dynamics of Membrane Proteins and

Cellular Energetics Norbert Latruffe, Yves Gaudemer, Pierre Vignais, Angelo Azzi, 2012-12-06 This manual on Dynamics of Membrane Proteins and Cellular Energetics is the result of a FEBS CNRS Course held in Grenoble and Besançon in September 1987 It appears to be after the first published in 1979 the fifth of the series After focussing on the Biochemistry of Membranes 1979 it was the turn of Membrane Proteins 1981 and of Enzymes Receptors and Carriers of Biological

Membranes 1983 followed by Membrane Proteins Isolation and Characterization 1986 Although the central issue has always been the its components and its functions each biological membrane manual has put the accent on somewhat different issues corresponding to the most innovative interesting research in the field After almost a decade this new manual appears which stresses the aspect of the integration of membrane research at a cellular level Such a novel emphasis is the consequence of the common interest of cell biology and biochemistry to understand the results of the biochemical analysis of membrane proteins in the context of the cell complexity Consequently most of the experimental protocols are dealing with cellular models but with clear reference to the function and structure of isolated membrane proteins

Post-translational Modification of Proteins by Lipids Urs Brodbeck, Clément Bordier, 1988-10-17 The growing interest in recent years in the anchoring to membranes of proteins by post translational modification is documented by the large number of publications which appeared in this field In September 1987 scientists from 10 countries from all over the world met in the resort village of Les Diablerets Switzerland to discuss the most recent advances made in this field The sessions were devoted to the anchoring of membrane proteins by covalent attachment of fatty acids and of glycopospholipids The workshop brought together many scientists working on vastly different proteins such as the variant surface glycoprotein of Trypanosomes and antigens of the mammalian cells The subject of the workshop unified many scientists who had not met before and thus greatly stimulated interdisciplinary work In addition to the lectures each participant was provided with a collection of Methods currently in use in the study of membrane proteins anchored by post translational modification An updated version of this collection is now presented as a Laboratory Manual and the techniques described therein will give researchers easy and practical access to the investigation of post translationally modified proteins The publication of the present book by Springer follows an established tradition of previously published manuals on the handling of membrane proteins Our thanks go to the authors who made the essential contribution in writing and adapting the experimental protocols to Mrs R
