Neotropical Birds of Prey David Whitacre, 2013-05-15 Until recently surprisingly little has been known about the biology and behavior of tropical forest raptors including such basic aspects as diets breeding biology habitat requirements and population ecology information critical to the development of conservation efforts The Peregrine Fund conducted a significant eight year long research program on the raptor species including owls in Tikal National Park in Guatemala to learn more about Neotropical birds of prey Impressive and unprecedented in scale this pioneering research also involved the development of new methods for detecting enumerating and studying these magnificent but often elusive birds in their forest home Beautifully illustrated with photographs of previously little known species the resulting book is the most important single source for information on the lowland tropical forest raptor species found in Central America

Neotropical Birds of Prey covers twenty specific species in depth including the Ornate Hawk Eagle the Barred Forest Falcon the Bat Falcon and the Mexican Wood Owl offering thorough synopses of all current knowledge regarding breeding biology and behavior diet habitat use and spatial needs Contributors to this landmark work also show how the populations fit together as a community with overlapping habitat and prey needs that can put them in competition with reptiles and mammalian carnivores as well yet differ from one another in their nesting or feeding behaviors and population dynamics The work's substantive original data offer interesting comparisons between tropical and temperate zone species and provide a basis for establishing conservation measures based on firsthand research Making available for the first time new data on the biology ecology behavior and conservation of the majestic owls and raptors of the New World tropics this book will appeal to a wide ornithological readership especially the many raptor enthusiasts around the world

Birds in Our Lives United States. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, 1966

Raptors Keith L. Bildstein, 2017-05-02 Raptors are formally classified into five families and include birds such as eagles ospreys kites true hawks buzzards harriers vultures and falcons that are familiar and recognized by many observers These diurnal birds of prey are found on every continent except Antarctica and can thrive in seemingly inhospitable spots such as deserts and the tundra They have powerful talons and hooked beaks for cutting and tearing meat and keen binocular vision to aid in their hunting prowess Because of their large size distinctive feeding habits and long distance flight patterns raptors intrigue humans and have been the subject of much general interest as well as extensive scientific research Keith L Bildstein has watched and studied raptors on five continents and is well prepared to explain their critical importance not only as ecological entities but also as inspirational tokens across natural and human dominated landscapes His book offers a comprehensive and accessible account of raptors including their evolutionary history their relationships to other groups of birds their sensory abilities their general natural history their breeding ecology and feeding behavior and threats to their survival in a human dominated world Biologically sound but readable Raptors is a nontechnical overview of this captivating group It will allow naturalists birders hawk watchers science educators schoolchildren and the general public along with new students in the field of raptor biology to understand and appreciate these birds and in so doing better protect them
