Health Care In Rural China Lessons From Hebei Province:

Health Care in Rural China Ofra Anson, Shifang Sun, 2017-11-30 This work examines health defined in its broadest meaning in rural China today It explores the current social distribution of health status health behaviour and health care and the processes by which these came about By exploring universal questions in the social historical and political context of rural China the authors advance our understanding of the social processes which shape the social distribution of health and health care and draw policy implications for both post industrial and developing societies Using rural China as a case study three main issues are addressed The role of ideology politics and economic processes in shaping access to health and health care for the rural population The behaviour patterns of lay persons and health professionals and the degree to which they are influenced by specific social context Patterns of health inequalities and the distribution of health services The book will be a useful reference for students researchers and policy makers with an interest in health care in developing as well as post industrial societies

The Chinese State's Retreat from Health Jane Duckett, 2012-08-21 Over the post Mao period the Chinese state has radically cut back its role in funding health services and insuring its citizens against the costs of ill health Using an analytical framework drawn from studies of state retrenchment in industrialized democracies and in post communist Eastern Europe Jane Duckett argues that the state's retreat from health in China was not a simple consequence of economic policies and market reform Just as important were the influences of health policies reform era political institutions communist party ideology and bureaucratic stakeholders Through her analysis Duckett maintains that by studying retrenchment in China the world's most populous nation and now a major global economic power we can better understand international transformations in the role of the state and the politics that shape that role The Chinese State's Retreat from Health both extends research on retrenchment politics to a major authoritarian state and contributes to piecing together understanding of the Chinese state's changing role across the economy and other social policies including housing and education It will be of interest to students and scholars of Chinese politics social policy and the Chinese health care system as well as to those with a comparative interest in health welfare states and the politics of retrenchment Jane Duckett is Professor of Chinese and Comparative Politics at the University of Glasgow UK

Informal Payments and Regulations in China's Healthcare System Jingqing Yang, 2016-11-26 This text addresses the key issue of informal payments or red packets in the Chinese Healthcare system It considers how transactions take place at the clinical level as well as their regulation Analysing the practice from the perspectives of institutions and power structure it examines how institutional changes in the pre reform and reform era have changed the power structure between medical professions patients and the Party state and how these changes have given rise and perpetuate the practice Drawing from qualitative data from interviews of medical professionals the author recognises the medical profession as a major player in the health care system and presents their perception of the practice as the taker of red packets and their interactions with the patient and the state

surrounding the illegal practice in an authoritarian power structure The books considers the institutional reasons that motivate doctors to take patients to give and the government to tolerate red packets arguing that the bureaucratization of the medical profession society of acquaintances and shortage of quality of medical services jointly create an institutional setting that has given rise to these informal payments Contributing to a rounded understanding of the problems of healthcare reform in China this book is a key read for all scholars interested in the issue of informal payments and healthcare politics in transition economies Truths and Half Truths Ferdinand Gul,Haitian Lu,2011-06-30 Truths and Half Truths is aimed at economic and social science academics and students who are interested in the dynamics of China s institutional development and societal transformation Covering the complexity of the social economic and governance reforms behind the economic miracles achieved by China since its reform in 1978 and particularly in the past twenty years this book provides much needed insight and critical thinking on major aspects of China s reform Topics include employment environment anti poverty urbanization and rural development education corruption political regime and media Readers will be able to re evaluate the costs and benefits of China s modernization from a point of view of sustainability Written by highly knowledgeable and well respected academics in law and economics with decades of experience in China studies Provides an insight from academic points of view written in a reader friendly journalistic style An integrated monograph each chapter addresses a particular area of reform and can be read independently China's Rise to Power J. Lee,L. Nedilsky,S. Cheung,2012-10-31 China s combination of authoritarian rule and a market oriented economy has proven simultaneously appealing and a source of domestic discontent This essay collection balances policy analysis with detailed investigation of escalating popular unrest to anticipate the future of Chinese governance society Disease, Colonialism, and the State Ka-che YIP,2009-01-01 Studying malaria in modern East Asia in the context of the global history of the disease this book fills an important gap in our understanding of the cultural social economic and political dimensions of the relationship between malaria and human society in a region which has often been neglected by historians of the disease The authors examine the development and consequences of various anti malaria strategies in Hong Kong Okinawa Taiwan mainland China and East Asia as a whole The British and Japanese colonial models of disease control are explored as is the later American technological model of DDT residue spraying promoted by the Rockefeller Foundation which played a significant role in the global anti malaria campaign and the development of public health in Asia In the post World War II period the use of DDT and international political and economic interests helped to shape anti malaria policies of the Nationalist government in Taiwan In mainland China the Beijing government s mass mobilization and primary health care model of anti malaria control has given way to new strategies as recent changes in the health care system have affected anti malaria efforts and public health developments This book illuminates an important and largely unexplored dimension of the history of malaria the interplay of the state colonial or sovereign international interests new medical knowledge and technology changing concepts of health and disease as well as local society in the formulation and implementation of anti malaria policies It will be of interest to historians of colonialism medicine and public health Asia as well as health and social policy planners

Marginalisation in China Bin Wu, Richard Sanders, 2016-05-13 Economic transition in China has witnessed re centralization of resources from the margin to the core in economic social and political senses This book employs a marginalization lens to reveal delineate and better understand the processes patterns trends multiple dimensions and dynamics of the phenomenon and the consequences and implications for development and well being in the country Bringing together a wide range of domestic and international experts and disciplinary perspectives the book combines empirical research and conceptual analysis to provide an insightful overview of China s recent development It contributes to the debate over marginalization and its interactions with globalization and transition in China and has significance for various domestic and international policy arenas in respect of tackling marginalization poverty and social exclusion effectively while striving for the achievement of the UN Millennium Development Goals in China and beyond

Providing Public Goods in Transitional China A. Saich, 2008-09-29 China s leaders are confronted with building a new support system in the countryside shifting the burden in urban China from the factory to the local state and integrating new social groups into existing systems This book comprises a detailed study of healthcare disease control social insurance and social relief

Social work and global health inequalities Bywaters, Paul, McLeod, Eileen, 2009-09-16 Tackling inequalities in health is an essential social work task Every day social workers grapple with the impact on people s lives of the social inequalities that shape their health chances and experience This book examines the relationship between social work and health inequalities in the context of globalisation Based on the practice expertise and research of social workers from developing and developed countries worldwide and using specific examples this book demonstrates the relevance of health inequalities to social work practice and policy across the lifecourse analyses barriers to good health that result from global social economic environmental and political trends develops core ideas on how social workers can act to combat negative effects of globalisation by adopting a health inequalities lens Social work and global health inequalities is a unique snapshot of a new global social work that is responsive to local conditions and circumstances but seeks partners in the international struggle for equity rights and social justice This groundbreaking collection is essential reading for social work students academics and researchers and for policy makers managers and social workers

China's Assistance Program in Xinjiang Yuhui Li, 2018-08-15 China's Assistance Program in Xinjiang A Sociological Analysis examines the partnership assistance program PAP in Xinjiang of northwestern China which was initially implemented by the Chinese government during the 1990s It was dramatically upgraded in 2010 following the 2009 riot in Urumqi the capital city of Xinjiang The program requires that a total of nineteen provinces and municipalities from coastal and central regions of China provide a huge amount of financial material technical human capital and other resources and aid to Xinjiang for at least ten years 2010-2020 This most recent version of the PAP has generated drastic social demographic economic and environmental changes in the region Yuhui Li looks at changes in Xinjiang in recent years as a result of the PAP implementation Xinjiang has become increasingly more industrialized modernized and urbanized and is thus essential in helping the country realize the China dream However the heavily interventional PAP could bring about unexpected consequences For example it could potentially aggravate the already tense racial relations in the region

Fighting for Breath Anna Lora-Wainwright, 2013-05-31 Numerous reports of cancer villages have appeared in the past decade in both Chinese and Western media highlighting the downside of China's economic development Less generally known is how people experience and understand cancer in areas where there is no agreement on its cause Who or what do they blame How do they cope with its onset Fighting for Breath is the first ethnography to offer a bottom up account of how rural families strive to make sense of cancer and care for sufferers It addresses crucial areas of concern such as health development morality and social change in an effort to understand what is at stake in the contemporary Chinese countryside Encounters with cancer are instances in which social and moral fault lines may become visible Anna Lora Wainwright combines powerful narratives and critical engagement with an array of scholarly debates in sociocultural and medical anthropology and in the anthropology of China The result is a moving exploration of the social inequities endemic to post 1949 China and the enduring rural urban divide that continues to challenge social justice in the People s Republic In depth case studies present villagers fight for breath as both a physical and social struggle to reclaim a moral life ensure family and neighborly support and critique the state for its uneven welfare provision Lora Wainwright depicts their suffering as lived experience but also as embedded in domestic economies and in the commodification of care that has placed the burden on families and individuals Fighting for Breath will be of interest to students teachers and researchers in Chinese studies sociocultural and medical anthropology human geography development studies and the social study of medicine Regional China Rongxing Guo,2013-01-21 It is a resource book that profiles the geography demography economy political environment and business climates for each of China s 31 provinces It will become a useful source book to researchers businesses government agencies and news media interested in either the rapidly changing provincial economies or the Chinese economy as a whole Child and Youth Well-being in China Lijun Chen,Dali L. Yang,Di Zhou,Qiang Ren,2018-12-07 The true measure of any society is how it treats its children who are in turn that society s future Making use of data from the longitudinal Chinese Family Panel Studies survey the authors of this timely study provide a multi faceted description and analysis of China s younger generations They assess the economic physical and social emotional well being as well as the cognitive performance and educational attainment of China s children and youth They pay special attention to the significance of family and community contexts including the impact of parental absence on millions of left behind children Throughout the volume the authors delineate various forms of disparities especially the structural inequalities maintained by the Chinese Party state and the vulnerabilities of children and youth in fragile families and communities They also analyze the social attitudes and values of Chinese youth Having grown up in a period of sustained prosperity and greater individual choice the younger Chinese cohorts are more independent in spirit more open minded socially and significantly less deferential to authority than older cohorts There is growing recognition in China of the importance of investing in children s future and of helping the less advantaged Substantial improvements in child and youth well being have been achieved in a time of growing economic prosperity Strong political commitment is needed to sustain existing efforts and to overcome the many obstacles that remain This book will be of considerable interest to researchers of Chinese society and development Health and Health Care of the Older Population in Urban and Rural China ,2007 China Review International ,2006 China's Changing Welfare Mix Beatriz Carrillo,Jane Duckett,2011-06-10 This book draws attention to two neglected areas in the growing body of research on welfare in China subnational variation and the changing mix of state and non state provision The contributors to this volume demonstrate the diversity of local welfare provision that lies behind broad national policies and programmes Their focus on local diversity is particularly relevant to understanding the welfare system in China because national state programmes are so often organized by local governments in line with the specifics of their economic and social development

At the same time that social and economic development is itself independently creating an array of different conditions that shape non state family business and third sector welfare roles Through chapters that draw on original research in eight provinces the book adopts a local perspective to illustrate and explain some of the transformations that are under way and discuss not only local government initiatives and programmes but also the services and support provided by families informal social networks and community or third sector organizations as well as those delivered by private businesses on a commercial for profit basis This book will be of interest to students and scholars of Chinese society social policy and Chinese studies more widely Beatriz Carrillo is Lecturer in Asian Studies at the University of Technology Sydney Australia Jane Duckett is Professor of Chinese and Comparative Politics at the University of Glasgow UK Financing Health Care World Bank,1997-01-01 Food consumption demand agricultural research fertilizer land water resources infrastructure domestic grain international grain market economy business markets tariffs environment health productivity pollution energy industry water urban transportation pension reform elderly education employment rural urban income poverty Organizing Rural China — Rural China Organizing Ane Bislev,Stig Thogersen,2012-04-05 During the early 1980s China embarked on what can be seen as one of the world s largest social experiments ever Decollectivization meant much more than the reorganization of agricultural production into family based farming It signaled significant changes to rural social relations when privatization marketization and increased geographical mobility started tearing apart the economic and social institutions that had structured collective village life under Mao The focus of this book is on how rural society has been reorganized in the 21st century The first chapters outline the basic organizational structure of rural China and can be used as an introduction to the topic in a classroom setting They show how the state and its social scientists draw up plans to overcome the perceived lack of rural social organization and discuss the often problem ridden implementation of their ideas The second section presents case studies of institutions that organize key aspects of rural life Boarding schools where rural children learn to accept organizational hierarchies lineage organizations carving out new roles for themselves dragonhead enterprises expected to organize agricultural production and support rural development and several others The book is of theoretical interest because of its focus on the re embedding or reintegration of individuals into new types of collectivities which are less predetermined by tradition and habit and more a matter of at least perceived individual choice Most chapters are based on extensive fieldwork and contain vivid examples from daily life which will make the book attractive to anyone who wants to understand how Chinese villagers experience the extraordinary social changes they are going through
