Owenson Susan B. Egenolf, 2017-11-30 Even as Romantic period authors asserted the importance of telling the unvarnished truth novelists were deploying narrative glossing in particularly sophisticated forms The author examines the artistic craft and political engagement of three major women novelists Elizabeth Hamilton Maria Edgeworth and Sydney Owenson whose self-conscious use of glosses facilitated their critiques of politics and society All three writers employed devices such as prefaces and editorial notes as well as alternative media especially painting and drama to comment on the narrative The effect of these disparate media the author argues is to call the reader's attention away from the narrative itself That is such glossing or varnishing creates narrative ruptures that offer the reader a glimpse of the process of fictional structuring and often reveal the novel's indebtedness to a particular historical moment In spite or perhaps because of their being gendered feminine in eighteenth-century rhetorical commentary therefore these glosses allow women writers to participate in masculine discussions outside the conventional domestic sphere Informed by a wide range of archival texts and examples from the visual arts and highlighting the 1798 Irish Rebellion as a major event in Irish and British Romantic writing the author's study offers a new interdisciplinary reading of gendered and political responses to key events in the history of Romanticism

The Education of the Eye Peter De Bolla, 2003 The Education of the Eye examines the origins of visual culture in eighteenth-century Britain setting out to reclaim visual culture for the democracy of the eye and to explain how aesthetic contemplation may once more be open to all who have eyes to look

Bardic Nationalism Katherine M Trumpener, 2021-01-12 This magisterial work links the literary and intellectual history of England Scotland Ireland and Britain's overseas colonies during the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries to redraw our picture of the origins of cultural nationalism the lineages of the novel and the literary history of the English-speaking world Katie Trumpener recovers and recontextualizes a vast body of fiction to describe the history of the novel during a period of formal experimentation and political engagement between its eighteenth-century rise and its Victorian heyday During the late eighteenth century antiquaries in Ireland Scotland and Wales answered modernization and anglicization initiatives with nationalist arguments for cultural preservation Responding in particular to Enlightenment dismissals of Gaelic oral traditions they reconceived national and literary history under the sign of the bard Their pathbreaking models of national and literary history their new way of reading national landscapes and their debates about tradition and cultural transmission shaped a succession of new novelistic genres from Gothic and sentimental fiction to the national tale and the historical novel In Ireland and Scotland these genres were used to mount nationalist arguments for cultural specificity and against internal colonization Yet once exported throughout the nascent British empire they also formed the basis of the first colonial fiction of Canada Australia and British India used not only to attack imperialism but to justify the imperial project Literary forms intended to shore up national memory paradoxically become the means of buttressing imperial ideology and enforcing imperial amnesia
