Mysticism and Spirituality in Medieval England William F. Pollard, Robert Boenig, 1997 The late fourteenth and early fifteenth centuries in England were a golden age of mysticism the major figures could draw on and allude to a host of treatises as the Cloud author acknowledges when he explains how the works of St Denis validate all he writes about Without Denis without the theologians of the eleventh and twelfth centuries without the anchoritic writings of the thirteenth century Richard Rolle Julian of Norwich Walter Hilton Margery Kempe could not have written as they did Likewise those who followed them the Wycliffites the Brigittines the writers of religious lyrics responded to those who had gone before The articles presented here identify major themes and the web of influence that link them new but solid interpretations are offered of the key figures and their backgrounds and the emphasis is on the rich variety of mysticism these authors and texts embody

The Medieval Lyric Peter Dronke, 1996 He shows the men and women who sang and played in medieval Europe as the heirs of both a Roman and a Germanic lyric tradition united but differentiated from country to country he introduces the scholars and musicians from the Byzantine world and the Paris schools the German courts and Italian city states and he brilliantly presents their work both sacred and profane      The Oxford History of Poetry in English Julia Boffey, Anthony Stockwell Garfield Edwards, 2023 This volume explores a range of English verse from 1400 to 1500 It studies specific genres and modes of fifteenth century verse the contexts for its creation the material forms of its transmission and some of its individual practitioners      The Middle English Penitential Lyric Frank Allen Patterson, 1911      Vernacular Aesthetics in the Later Middle Ages Katharine W. Jager, 2019-07-03 Vernacular Aesthetics in the Later Middle Ages explores the formal composition public performance and popular reception of vernacular poetry music and prose within late medieval French and English cultures This collection of essays considers the extra literary and extra textual methods by which vernacular forms and genres were obtained and examines the roles that performance and orality play in the reception and dissemination of those genres arguing that late medieval vernacular forms can be used to delineate the interests and perspectives of the subaltern Via an interdisciplinary approach contributors use theories of multimodality translation manuscript studies sound studies gender studies and activist New Formalism to address how and for whom popular vernacular medieval forms were made      Scribit Mater Georgiana Donavin, 2012 Intro Contents List of Illustrations Acknowledgments Abbreviations Introduction 1 The English Lives of Mary 2 John of Garland Gram Marian 3 The Musical Mother Tongue in Anglo Latin Poetry for Meditation 4 Chaucer and Dame School 5 Mary's Mild Voice in the Middle English Lyrics 6 Margery Kempe and the Virgin Birth of Her Book Conclusion Selected Bibliography Index      Translating Christ in the Middle Ages Barbara Zimbalist, 2022-02-15 This study reveals how women's visionary texts played a central role within medieval discourses of authorship reading and devotion From the twelfth to the fifteenth centuries women across northern Europe began committing their visionary conversations with Christ to the written word Translating Christ in this way required multiple transformations divine speech into human language aural event into textual artifact visionary experience into linguistic record and individual encounter into communal repetition This ambitious study shows how women's visionary texts form an underexamined literary tradition within medieval religious culture Barbara Zimbalist demonstrates how within this tradition female visionaries developed new forms of authorship reading and devotion Through these transformations the female visionary authorized herself and her text and performed a rhetorical imitatio Christi that offered models of interpretive practice and spoken devotion to her readers This literary historical tradition has not yet been fully recognized on its own terms By exploring its development in hagiography visionary texts and devotional literature Zimbalist shows how this literary mode came to be not only possible but widespread and influential She argues that women's visionary translation reconfigured traditional hierarchies and positions of spiritual power for female authors and readers in ways that reverberated throughout late medieval literary and religious cultures In translating their visionary conversations with Christ into vernacular text medieval women turned themselves into authors and devotional guides and formed their readers into textual communities shaped by gendered visionary experiences and spoken imitatio Christi Comparing texts in Latin Dutch

French and English Translating Christ in the Middle Ages explores how women's visionary translation of Christ's speech initiated larger transformations of gendered authorship and religious authority within medieval culture. The book will interest scholars in different linguistic and religious traditions in medieval studies, history, religious studies, and women's and gender studies.

Margery Kempe and Translations of the Flesh Karma Lochrie, 1991. A feminist analysis of the writing of the fifteenth-century English mystic showing how Kempe exploited the gendered ideologies of flesh and text, violated taboos, and responded to the constraints of her time. Book News Inc.

The Middle English Mystics Wolfgang Riehle, 2019-06-26. Originally published as an English translation in 1981. The Middle English Mystics is a crucial contribution to the study of the literature of English mysticism. This book surveys and analyses the language of metaphor in the writings of such mystics as Richard Rolle, Walter Hilton, Julian of Norwich, and in such anonymous works as The Cloud of Unknowing and the Ancrene Wisse. The main emphasis of this comparative and stylistic study is not theological but rather the means by which theological concepts are communicated through language. The book sets the English mystics in perspective by establishing their place in the European mystical movement of the Middle Ages. It shows how intricate the relationship between English and continental mysticism really is. The book suggests that there is clear links between English and German female mysticism yet the mysticism is in the main due not so much to specific influences as to the common background of Christian theology and mysticism.

The Ethics of Reading in Manuscript Culture John Dagenais, 1994-02-18. Reexamining the roles played by author, reader, scribe, and text in medieval literary practice. John Dagenais argues that the entire physical manuscript must be the basis of any discussion of how meaning was made. Medievalists, he maintains, have relied too heavily on critical editions that seek to create a single definitive text reflecting an author's intentions. In reality, manuscripts bear not only authorial texts but also a variety of elements added by scribes and readers: glosses, marginal notes, pointing hands, illuminations, and fragments of other seemingly unrelated works. Using the surviving manuscripts of the fourteenth-century Libro de buen amor, a work that has been read both as didactic treatise on spiritual love and as a celebration of sensual pleasures, Dagenais shows how consideration of the physical manuscripts and their cultural context can shed new light on interpretive issues that have puzzled modern readers. Dagenais also addresses the theory and practice of reading in the Middle Ages, showing that for medieval readers, the text on the manuscript leaf, including the text of the Libro, was primarily rhetorical and ethical in nature. It spoke to them directly, individually, always in the present moment. Exploring the margins of the manuscripts of the Libro and of other Iberian works, Dagenais reveals how medieval readers continually reshaped their texts, both physically and ethically, as they read, and argues that the context of medieval manuscript culture forces us to reconsider such comfortable, received notions as text and literature and the theories we have based upon them.
