International Perspectives on Materials in ELT Sue Garton, Kathleen Graves, 2014-05-30 This book brings together different perspectives on ELT materials from a range of international contexts and a variety of educational settings All the chapters are underpinned by sound theoretical principles while addressing practical concerns and debates in materials design and use European Perspectives on Transformation Theory Ted Fleming, Alexis Kokkos, Fergal Finnegan, 2019-07-23

This book offers a concise and comprehensive exploration of the theory of transformative learning by European researchers Exploring Mezirow's theory of transformative learning as a living theory the editors and contributors ask whether there is a uniquely European perspective on this theory that reflects Europe's traditions and contexts What is the nature of that perspective and how is it similar or different to those espoused in the USA This book outlines how the theory of transformative learning has been developed by European researchers and how it has built upon, critiqued and enriched the Transformation Theory proposed by Mezirow Consequently this volume outlines new theoretical perspectives for the future evolution of transformative learning and explores theoretical perspectives that can be put into practice in a range of fields This wide ranging volume will be of interest and value to all those interested in transformative learning theory Teaching English Astrida Skrinda, 2019 Original peer reviewed contributions from recognized and established scholars and practitioners offer a variety of perspectives on teaching English as a second or foreign language and an expanded focus on teaching in international contexts The authors challenge several current practices from multiple viewpoints and offer innovations that are thoughtful and engaging Definitely we must build on our past and present knowledge of what works to refine and improve existing language teaching practices and it is hoped develop other practices that will be even better and more encompassing Thus Chapter 1 reports the launch of a newly designed problem based learning program in which metacognitive strategy instruction is integrated into an English listening curriculum It combines the Problem Based Learning approach from education and the Metacognitive approach from second language listening research The author does a good job at the end to try to disentangle the effects of the two treatments This is an exciting time to be teaching English as a second or foreign language In many countries children are starting to learn English at an ever younger age Chapter 2 provides a meta analysis of the situation currently observed in many English as a foreign language classes given to Polish and Slovak preschool learners among others It covers not only an analysis of a number of currently observed approaches but also presents research based propositions Also it suggests a handful of problem grounded outcomes We cannot be satisfied with the in progress state of affairs but must seek out new ways to provide learners with the most effective and efficient language learning experiences possible taking into account the learners goals interests and learning contexts Chapter 3 concerns the attitudes of Polish English language majors to their target language cultural learning Though Chapter 3 leaves us with many questions unanswered it sheds the light on the teaching of cultural elements particularly in a European context Finally Chapter 4 offers a unique perspective on language instruction particularly for audiences unfamiliar with Buddhist philosophy Basically it describes a teaching approach based on Buddhist philosophy which would probably be very effective for someone familiar and or interested in that particular school of thought Alternatively it would open readers mind to a completely different approach to language instruction which may or may not work outside of its current context but at least it has a very clear philosophical foundation and very clear set of procedures that are worth examining further The intended audience are all those who are interested in teaching English as second or foreign language including researchers methodologists curriculum and materials designers teachers and undergraduate and graduate students

Teaching English Astrida Skrinda, 2019 Original peer reviewed contributions from recognized and established scholars and practitioners offer a variety of perspectives on teaching English as a second or foreign language and an expanded focus on teaching in international contexts The authors challenge several current practices from multiple viewpoints and offer innovations that are thoughtful and engaging Definitely we must build on our past and present knowledge of what works to refine and improve existing language teaching practices and it is hoped develop other practices that will be even better and more encompassing Thus Chapter 1 reports the launch of a newly designed problem based learning program in which metacognitive strategy instruction is integrated into an English listening curriculum It combines the Problem Based Learning approach from education and the Metacognitive approach from second language listening research The author does a good job at the end to try to disentangle the effects of the two treatments This is an exciting time to be teaching English as a second or foreign language In many countries children are starting to learn English at an ever younger age Chapter 2 provides a meta analysis of the situation currently observed in many English as a foreign language classes given to Polish and Slovak preschool learners among others It covers not only an analysis of a number of currently observed approaches but also presents research based propositions Also it suggests a handful of problem grounded outcomes We cannot be satisfied with the in progress state of affairs but must seek out new ways to provide learners with the most effective and efficient language learning experiences possible taking into account the learners goals interests and learning contexts Chapter 3 concerns the attitudes of Polish English language majors to their target language cultural learning Though Chapter 3 leaves us with many questions unanswered it sheds the light on the teaching of cultural elements particularly in a European context Finally Chapter 4 offers a unique perspective on language instruction particularly for audiences unfamiliar with Buddhist philosophy Basically it describes a teaching approach based on Buddhist philosophy which would probably be very effective for someone familiar and or interested in that particular school of thought Alternatively it would open readers mind to a completely different approach to language instruction which may or may not work outside of its current context but at least it has a very clear philosophical foundation and very clear set of procedures that are worth examining further The intended audience are all those who are interested in teaching English as second or foreign language including researchers methodologists curriculum and materials designers teachers and undergraduate and graduate students

International Perspectives on Teaching English in Difficult Circumstances Kuchah Kuchah, Fauzia Shamim, 2018-11-17 This book offers a holistic practitioner and research based perspective on English Language Teaching and teacher education in difficult circumstances

In addition to extending the current conceptualization of difficult circumstances in ELT to include the broader policy issues that may affect ELT in low to mid income countries the book focuses on the challenges faced by practitioners and learners in contexts of confinement conflict and special education The chapters in this collection examine the challenges and problems that emerge from the complex current ELT environment and present examples of contextualized inquiry based strategies and interventions to address these challenges Underlining the need to extend the boundaries of the discipline of ELT to include teaching learning in less privileged contexts this wide ranging volume will appeal to students scholars and practitioners of English Language Teaching
