A Century of English Fox-hunting George Frederick Underhill, 1900

An Introduction to Fox-Hunting E. S. C. Hobson, 1911 This guide to fox hunting dates from the early 20th century and contains advice on treatment of horses etiquette towards fellow hunters and best practice in the field Written by a Major of the Worcestershire regiment in England this introductory primer is one of quality in spite of its brevity The reader is given a series of quick fire tips and pointers on how to properly conduct a fox hunt The customs and manners required of a good hunter and the methods of putting a hunting horse and hounds at ease are given By following the guidance herein the fox hunter will increase the likelihood of success and find respect among one's fellow hunters At the time this book was first published in 1911 fox hunting was a popular sport in the rural provinces of England Although the practice never gained as much favor elsewhere books such as this were intended as an introduction for readers across the English speaking world Today fox hunting is controversial proponents note its importance in country heritage and in pest control for farmers while opponents consider the sport an example of animal cruelty

A Century of English Fox-Hunting (Classic Reprint) George F. Underhill, 2015-08-08

Excerpt from A Century of English Fox Hunting A preface must to a certain extent partake of the nature of an autobiography and I fear that the majority of readers regard autobiographies with suspicion Moreover there are few books which require a preface to the first edition though in subsequent editions it is only fair that the author should have an opportunity of making explanations in cases where he has been misunderstood Nor beyond acknowledging the kind help which I have received from friends and acquaintances should I have made any prefatory remarks to the following pages if it were not that I have been urgently persuaded to do so by those whose literary experience is far greater than my own I have often heard it stated that the character of a book reflects the character of the author and such undoubtedly must be the case when the book has any claim for originality But in a work which only pretends to a moderate degree of research there can be little if any index to the character of the author who accordingly should not be accused of personal vanity for writing a preface About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

English Fox-Hunting Nimrod,2015-02-04 It is a hackneyed enough remark that both ancient and modern writers make sad work of it when they attempt a description of heaven To describe a run with fox hounds is a not much easier task but to make the attempt with any other county than Leicestershire in our eye would be giving a chance away Let us then suppose ourselves at Ashby Pasture in the Quorn country with Mr Osbaldeston s hounds Let us also indulge ourselves with a fine morning in the first week of February and at least two hundred well mounted men by the covers side Time being called say a quarter past eleven nearly our great grandfathers dinner hour the hounds approach the furze brake or the gorse as it is called in that region Hark in hark with a slight cheer and perhaps one wave of his cap says Mr Osbaldeston who has long hunted his own pack and in an instant he has not a hound at his horse s heels In a very short time the gorse appears shaken in various parts of the cover apparently from an unknown cause not a single hound being for some minutes visible Presently one or two appear leaping over some old furze which they cannot push through and exhibit to the field their glossy skins and spotted sides Oh you beauties exclaims some old Meltonian rapturously fond of the sport Two minutes more elapse another hound slips out of cover and takes a short turn outside with his nose to the ground and his stern lashing his side thinking no doubt he might touch on a drag should Reynard have been abroad in the night Hounds have no business to think thinks the second whipper in who observes him but one crack of his whip with Rasselas Rasselas where are you going Rasselas Get to cover Rasselas and Rasselas immediately disappears Five minutes more pass away No fox here says one Don t be in a hurry cries Mr Cradock they are drawing it beautifully and there is rare lying in it These words are scarcely uttered when the cover shakes more than ever Every stem appears alive and it reminds us of a corn field waving in the wind In two minutes the sterns of some more hounds are seen flourishing above the gorse Have at him there again my good hounds a fox for a hundred reiterates the Squire putting his finger in his ear and uttering a scream which not being set to music we cannot give here Jack Stevens the first whipper in looks at his watch At this moment John White Val Maher Frank Holyoake who will pardon us for giving them their noms de chasse and two or three more of the fast ones are seen creeping gently on towards a point at which they think it probable he may break Hold hard there says a sportsman but he might as well speak to the winds

Stand still gentle men pray stand still exclaims the huntsman he might as Well say so to the sun During the time we have been speaking of all the field have been awake gloves put on cigars thrown away the bridle reins gathered well up into the hand and hats pushed down upon the brow
