How States Pay for Wars Rosella Cappella Zielinski, 2016-07-11 Armies fight battles states fight wars To focus solely on armies is to neglect the broader story of victory and defeat Military power stems from an economic base and without wealth soldiers cannot be paid weapons cannot be procured and food cannot be bought War finance is among the most consequential decisions any state makes how a state finances a war affects not only its success on the battlefield but also its economic stability and its leadership tenure In How States Pay for Wars Rosella Cappella Zielinski clarifies several critical dynamics lying at the nexus of financial and military policy Cappella Zielinski has built a custom database on war funding over the past two centuries and she combines those data with qualitative analyses of Truman's financing of the Korean War Johnson's financing of the Vietnam War British financing of World War II and the Crimean War and Russian and Japanese financing of the Russo Japanese War She argues that leaders who attempt to maximize their power at home and state power abroad are in a constant balancing act as they try to win wars while remaining in office As a result of political risks they prefer war finance policies that meet the needs of the war effort within the constraints of the capacity of the state

Economic Effect of Vietnam Spending United States. Congress. Joint Economic Committee, 1967

Exploding the Myth? Derek Braddon, 2014-02-25 From a cold war peak of some 1000 billion per annum world military expenditure has declined by about 40% since 1990 reaching its lowest level for thirty years With such significant decline in global public expenditure commitments to the defence sector a substantial and lasting peace dividend was anticipated Most governments believed that market forces left more or less to their own devices would deal effectively with this major exogenous shock and generate sufficient new economic activity to allow increased public expenditure on health education and welfare The approach of this book is to challenge the fundamental but flawed belief that a substantial and lasting peace dividend could be secured through market solution alone The principal assertion is that market adjustment by itself cannot deliver such a dividend The book focuses on the major aspects of the economic business and security consequences of post Cold War defence expenditure reduction Key problems obstructing optimal market response are identified and possible remedial action by government and others is considered

Recovery from Armed Conflict in Developing Countries Geoff Harris, 2002-02-07 This comprehensive work examines ways in which developing countries may achieve economic political and social reconstruction in the wake of armed conflict International researchers discuss such issues as women and children in the recovery process refugees and the role of aid the reintegration of ex combatants and community led recovery Case studies focus upon Afghanistan Angola Cambodia Mozambique South Africa and Sri Lanka      Economic Adjustment And Conversion Of Defense Industries John E. Lynch, 2019-04-08 Defense plant cutbacks and military base closures have affected hundreds of U S communities during the past twenty five years Tracing the recovery of four communities after large defense plant cutbacks and of one hundred communities after military base closures the contributors analyze the transition from the production of military to civilian goods The contributors examine the market potential of reusing defense industrial plants to produce civilian products within the one to two year period called for by economic conversion proponents showing that the complex process needed to develop test and market an entirely new product requires a minimum of five years They also review the wide range of economic development techniques available at the state and local level conversion approaches in Western Europe programs for displaced workers and reasons why the economic conversion approach has failed to attract public support in the United States The case studies are used to formulate an integrated composite approach for coping with plant closures and major employment dislocations Stressing the importance of community based economic adjustment activities this book will be valuable to all concerned with mitigating the effects of military and civilian plant closures
