A Not-So-New World Christopher M. Parsons, 2018-09-21 When Samuel de Champlain founded the colony of Quebec in 1608 he established elaborate gardens where he sowed French seeds he had brought with him and experimented with indigenous plants that he found in nearby fields and forests Following Champlain's example fellow colonists nurtured similar gardens through the Saint Lawrence Valley and Great Lakes region In A Not So New World Christopher Parsons observes how it was that French colonists began to learn about Native environments and claimed a mandate to cultivate vegetation that did not differ all that much from that which they had left behind As Parsons relates colonists soon discovered that there were limits to what they could accomplish in their gardens The strangeness of New France became woefully apparent for example when colonists found that they could not make French wine out of American grapes They attributed the differences they discovered to Native American neglect and believed that the French colonial project would rehabilitate and restore the plant life in the region However the more colonists experimented with indigenous species and communicated their findings to the wider French Atlantic world the more foreign New France appeared to French naturalists and even to the colonists themselves Parsons demonstrates how the French experience of attempting to improve American environments supported not only the acquisition and incorporation of Native American knowledge but also the development of an emerging botanical science that focused on naming new species Exploring the moment in which settlers missionaries merchants and administrators believed in their ability to shape the environment to better resemble the country they left behind A Not So New World reveals that French colonial ambitions were fueled by a vision of an ecologically sustainable empire      Voices of Early Modern Japan Constantine Nomikos Vaporis, 2020-11-27 In this newly revised and updated 2nd edition of Voices of Early Modern Japan Constantine Nomikos Vaporis offers an accessible collection of annotated historical documents of an extraordinary period in Japanese history ranging from the unification of warring states under Tokugawa Ieyasu in the early seventeenth century to the overthrow of the shogunate just after the opening of Japan by the West in the mid nineteenth century Through close examination of primary sources from The Great Peace this fascinating textbook offers fresh insights into the Tokugawa era its political institutions rigid class hierarchy artistic and material culture religious life and more demonstrating what historians can uncover from the words of ordinary people New features include An expanded section on religion morality and ethics A new selection of maps and visual documents Sources from government documents and household records to diaries and personal correspondence translated and examined in light of the latest scholarship Updated references for student projects and research assignments The first edition of Voices of Early Modern Japan was the winner of the 2013 Franklin R Buchanan Prize for Curricular Materials This fully revised textbook will prove a comprehensive resource for teachers and students of East Asian Studies history culture and anthropology      Visible Cities Leonard BLUSSE, Leonard

Curious Encounters Adriana Craciun, Mary Terrall, 2019-01-01 With contributions from historians, literary critics and geographers, Curious Encounters uncovers a rich history of global voyaging, collecting, and scientific exploration in the long eighteenth century. Leaving behind grand narratives of discovery, these essays collectively restore a degree of symmetry and contingency to our understanding of encounters between European and Indigenous people. To do this, the essays consider diverse agents of historical change: both human and inanimate commodities, curiosities, texts, animals, and specimens moved through their own global circuits of knowledge and power. The voyages and collections rediscovered here do not move from a European center to a distant periphery, nor do they position European authorities as the central agents of this early era of globalization. Long-distance voyagers from Greenland to the Ottoman Empire crossed paths with French, British, Polynesian, and Spanish travelers across the world, trading objects and knowledge for diverse ends. The dynamic contact zones of these curious encounters include the ice floes of the Arctic, the sociable spaces of the tea table, the hybrid material texts and objects in imperial archives, and the collections belonging to key figures of the Enlightenment, including Sir Hans Sloane and James Petiver.

Hybrid Knowledge in the Early East India Company World Anna Winterbottom, 2016-04-29 Hybrid Knowledge in the Early East India Company World presents a new interpretation of the development of the English East India Company between 1660 and 1720. The book explores the connections between scholarship, patronage, diplomacy, trade, and colonial settlement in the early modern world. Links of patronage between cosmopolitan writers and collectors and scholars associated with the Royal Society of London and the universities are investigated. Winterbottom shows how innovative works of scholarship covering natural history, ethnography, theology, linguistics, medicine, and agriculture were created amid multi-directional struggles for supremacy in Asia, the Indian Ocean, and the Atlantic. The role of non-elite actors, including slaves, in transferring knowledge and skills between settlements is explored in detail.

Defensive Positions Noell Wilson, 2020-05-11 Defensive Positions focuses on the role of regional domains in early modern Japan's coastal defense, shedding new light on this system's development. This examination in turn has significant long-term political implications for the involvement of those domains in Tokugawa state formation. Noell Wilson argues that domainal autonomy in executing maritime defense slowly escalated over the course of the Tokugawa period to the point where the daimyo ultimately challenged Tokugawa authorities as the primary military interface with the outside world. By first exploring localized maritime defense at Nagasaki and then comparing its organization with those of the Yokohama and Hakodate harbors during the treaty port era, Wilson identifies new core systemic sources for the collapse of the shogunate's control of the monopoly on violence. Her insightful analysis reveals how the previously unexamined system of domain-managed coastal defense comprised a critical third element in addition to trade and diplomacy of Tokugawa external relations. Domainal control of coastal defense exacerbated the shogunate's inability to respond to important military and political challenges as Japan transitioned from an early modern system of parcelized local maritime defense to one of centralized national security as embraced by world powers in the nineteenth century

The Cambridge History of the English Novel Robert L. Caserio, Clement Hawes, 2012-01-12 The Cambridge History of the English Novel chronicles an ever changing and developing body of fiction across three centuries An interwoven narrative of the novel's progress unfolds in more than fifty chapters charting continuities and innovations of structure tracing lines of influence in terms of themes and techniques and showing how greater and lesser authors shape the genre Pushing beyond the usual period centered boundaries the History's emphasis on form reveals the range and depth the novel has achieved in English This book will be indispensable for research libraries and scholars but is accessibly written for students Authoritative bold and clear the History raises multiple useful questions for future visions of the invention and re-invention of the novel

Exiles and Expatriates in the History of Knowledge, 1500-2000 Peter Burke, 2017-03-07 In this wide ranging consideration of intellectual diasporas historian Peter Burke questions what distinctive contribution to knowledge exiles and expatriates have made The answer may be summed up in one word deprovincialization Historically the encounter between scholars from different cultures was an education for both parties exposing them to research opportunities and alternative ways of thinking Deprovincialization was in part the result of mediation as many migrants informed people in their hostland about the culture of the native land and vice versa The detachment of the exiles who sometimes viewed both homeland and hostland through foreign eyes allowed them to notice what scholars in both countries had missed Yet at the same time the engagement between two styles of thought one associated with the exiles and the other with their hosts sometimes resulted in creative hybridization for example between German theory and Anglo American empiricism This timely appraisal is brimming with anecdotes and fascinating findings about the intellectual assets that exiles and immigrants bring to their new country even in the shadow of personal loss

Mount Fuji H. Byron Earhart, 2015-07-15 Illustrated with color and black and white images of the mountain and its associated religious practices H. Byron Earhart's study utilizes his decades of fieldwork including climbing Fuji with three pilgrimage groups and his research into Japanese and Western sources to offer a comprehensive overview of the evolving imagery of Mount Fuji from ancient times to the present day Included in the book is a link to his twenty eight minute streaming video documentary of Fuji pilgrimage and practice Fuji Sacred Mountain of Japan Beginning with early reflections on the beauty and power associated with the mountain in medieval Japanese literature Earhart examines how these qualities fostered spiritual practices such as Shugendo which established rituals and a temple complex at the mountain as a portal to an ascetic otherworld As a focus of worship the mountain became a source of spiritual insight rebirth and prophecy through the practitioners Kakugyo and Jikigyo whose teachings led to social movements such as Fujido the way of Fuji and to a variety of pilgrimage confraternities making images and replicas of the mountain for use in local rituals Earhart shows how the seventeenth century commodification of Mount Fuji inspired powerful interpretive renderings of the peerless mountain of Japan such as those of the nineteenth century print masters Hiroshige and Hokusai which were largely responsible for creating the international reputation of Mount Fuji In the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries images of Fuji served as an expression of a unique and superior Japanese culture With its distinctive shape firmly embedded in Japanese culture but its ethical ritual and spiritual associations made malleable over time Mount Fuji came to symbolize ultranationalistic ambitions in the 1930s and early 1940s peacetime democracy as early as 1946 and a host of artistic naturalistic and commercial causes even the exotic and erotic in the decades since

The Role of Religions in the European Perception of Insular and Mainland Southeast Asia Monika Arnez, Jürgen Sarnowsky, 2016-08-17 For people nowadays the constant exchange of people goods and ideas and their interaction across wide distances are a part of everyday life However such encounters and interregional links are by no means only a recent phenomenon although the forms they have taken in the course of history have varied It goes without saying that travel to distant regions was spurred by various interests first and foremost economic and imperialist policies which reached an initial climax around 1500 with the European expansion to the Americas and into the Indian Ocean The motivations of European travellers for venturing to the regions of maritime and mainland Southeast Asia which are the focus of the studies presented here were manifold ranging from the pursuit of power commercial exploitation intellectual curiosity and the aspiration to proselytize among indigenous people This book adds to existing knowledge on travel travel experiences and travel writing by Europeans in mainland and insular Southeast Asia from the 16th to the 21st century based on specific case studies Moreover it demonstrates how Europeans perceived religion in the region presently known as Southeast Asia Working on the assumption that many of the European traders seafarers explorers and administrators arriving in Southeast Asia came as Christians convinced of the superiority of their religion the contributors to this volume analyse their encounters with Muslims who had been their long standing enemies in the Mediterranean and with Hindus Buddhists and adherents of local religions They involve themselves closely with the travelogues and the role of religions therein and in doing so reveal the ways in which religion influenced the travellers understanding of societies in maritime and mainland Southeast Asia The volume explores a number of questions including How did European travellers perceive religion in different regions of Southeast Asia in different historical periods How did the administrators the missionaries the natural historians and the explorers position themselves vis vis Islam and Buddhism on Java and in Siam And what do travel accounts tell us about the way Southeast Asian people perceived the Europeans
