Educating Economists David C. Colander, KimMarie McGoldrick, 2010-01-01 This volume is an excellent outcome of an American Economic Association Committee for Economic Education project aimed at advancing the teaching of economics within a liberal arts context Dave Colander and KimMarie McGoldrick assembled a most able panel of contributors for this effort that includes dialogue on what should be taught how it should be taught and how that teaching and learning should be assessed and rewarded To the editors credit they have not attempted to dictate policy but to stimulate debate on the topics This volume is a must read for anyone seriously interested in the teaching of economics at the tertiary level William E Becker Indiana University Bloomington US The economics major is a central part of a college education But is that economics major doing what it is meant to do And if not how should it be changed This book raises a set of provocative questions that encourage readers to look at the economics major in a different light than it is typically considered and provides a series of recommendations for change Responding to a Teagle Foundation initiative on the role of majors in higher education the contributors eminent economists and administrators consider the relationship between the goals and objectives of the economics major and those of a liberal education They address questions such as What is the appropriate training for a person who will be teaching in a liberal arts school What incentives would motivate the creation of institutional value through teaching and not simply research They also explore whether the disciplinary nature of undergraduate education is squeezing out the big think questions and replacing them with little think questions and whether we should change graduate training of economists to better prepare them to be teachers rather than researchers Providing a stimulating discussion of the economics major by many of the leaders in US economic education this book will prove a thought provoking read for those with a special interest in economics and economics education particularly academics lecturers course administrators students and researchers

Microeconomics David C. Colander, 1998 Problems of Economics, 1991 Debt, Crisis and Recovery Albert Gailord Hart, Perry Mehrling, 1995-06-28 This book provides a perspective by a prominent economist on the problems of debt recession and recovery in the 1930s as compared with the 1990s The book begins with several chapters on the explosion of debt in the public and private sectors during the 1970s and 1980s and its implications for economic stagnation and recession that seem to plague the economy Resolution of the debt problem and reform of the banking and financial system are critically important because these problems dampen economic recovery and growth in the future The second part of the book is a reprint of Albert Hart s classic 1938 study Debts and Recovery 1929 to 1937 originally published by the 20th Century Fund The extraordinary parallel between financial problems of the 1930s and the 1990s solutions of the past and proposed reforms for the future may provide a fascinating study for scholars and interested citizens alike European Economics at a Crossroads John Barkley Rosser, Richard P. F. Holt, David C. Colander, 2010-01-01 As Europe moves toward an integrated academic system European economics is changing This book discusses that change along with the changes that are happening simultaneously within the economics profession The authors argue that modern economics can no longer usefully be described as neoclassical but is much better described as complexity economics The complexity approach embraces rather than assumes away the complexities of social interaction The authors also argue that despite all the problems with previous European academic structures those structures allowed for more diversity than exists in US universities and thus were often ahead of US universities in exploring new cutting edge approaches The authors further argue that by trying to judge themselves by US centric measures and to copy US universities the European economics profession is undermining some of the strengths of the older system strengths on which it should be building While the authors agree that European economics needs to go through major changes in the coming decade they argue that by building on Europe s strengths rather than trying to follow a US example Europe will be more likely to become the global leader in economics in the coming decades rather than a second rate copy of the US The book begins with two chapters spelling out the authors view of the changes in economics and European economics This is followed by 11 interviews with a diverse set of innovative European economists from a range of European countries In the interviews these European economists reflect on the ongoing changes in economics generally and in European economics specifically These interviews demonstrate how the economics profession is moving away from traditional neoclassical economics into a dynamic set of new methods and approaches incorporating work in behavioral economics experimental economics evolutionary game theory and ecological approaches complexity and nonlinear dynamics methodological analysis and agent based modelling that the authors classify as complexity economics This fascinating and easy to read book will prove a stimulating and thought provoking read for those with an interest in economics European education and the nature of academic disciplines generally Loose Leaf for Macroeconomics David C. Colander, 2016-07-26 Colander s Economics 10e is specifically designed to help today s students succeed in the principles of economics course and grasp economic concepts they can apply in their daily lives Colander s trademark colloquial approach focuses on modern economics institutions history and modeling and is organized around learning objectives to make it easier for students to understand the material and for instructors to build assignments within Connect Through Connect and Smartbook students will find engaging activities helpful tutorial videos and learning resources at that moment of need Connect is the only integrated learning system that empowers students by continuously adapting to deliver
