Ekelund Jr., John D. Jackson, Robert D. Tollison, 2017-07-03 The rapidly changing and evolving art market might appear to be chaotic to the casual observer with new highs potential lows and tastes and fashions changing season to season Economists however view the actions of buyers and sellers as constituting an identifiable market They have for some decades studied such issues as artistic productivity and death effects on prices investment returns and on the basis of the behavior and estimated prices in auction markets The Economics of American Art analyzes the most pervasive economic issues facing the art world applied to the whole spectrum of American art The book begins by looking at how a market for American art developed how the politics of the post war era shaped at least in large part the direction of American art and how this legacy continues into contemporary art today The book then tackles several salient integral questions animating the American art world Are age and type of artist i e traditional or innovative related and if so how might they be related to productivity Is investment in American art a remunerative endeavor compared to other investment possibilities Do economic insights provide understanding of fakes fraud and theft of art particularly American art and is it possible to prevent art crime Is there is a boom or a bust in the market for contemporary American art as might be found in other markets The ongoing evolution of American art is attended by a massive number of influences and the economic concepts employed in this volume will complement other critical and important cultural studies of art Both practical and accessible The Economics of American Art will be essential for collectors auction houses American art experts of all kinds museums gallery owners and not least by economists with continuing scholarly interests in these matters A Text Book of I.S.C. Liberal Learning and the Art of Self-Governance Emily Chamlee-Wright, 2015-11-19 Concerns over affordability and accountability have tended to direct focus away from the central aims of liberal learning such as preparing minds for free inquiry and inculcating the habits of mind practical skills and values necessary for effective participation in civil society The contributors to this volume seek to understand better what it is that can be done on a day to day basis within institutions of liberal learning that shape the habits and practices of civil society The central argument of this volume is that institutions of liberal learning are critical to a developing and flourishing civil society It is within these civil society incubators that the habits of open discourse are practiced and honed that a collaborative often contentious commitment to truth seeking serves as the rules that govern our work together that the rules of personal and widespread social cooperation are established practiced and refined Many have made this argument as it relates to community based learning and we explore that theme here as well But acquiring and practicing the habits of civil society recur within and throughout the college context in the classrooms in college governance structures in professional associations in collaborative research in the residence halls and on the playing field To put it another way when they are at their best institutions of liberal learning are contexts in which students learn how to live in a free society and learn the art of self governance

Managing Art Peter Bendixen, 2010 Arts Management is anything but a mere amalgamation of the world of the arts and the world of business management it is the confrontation of two opposing methodologies one being a field of human creativity that produces something new that did not exist before the other one diving into the existing world of business practices in order to improve their efficiency Some references to cultural philosophy economic and arts history and other important subjects are indispensable or at least helpful in understanding the chances and risks of arts management practices This is the aim of this book which is based on more than twenty years of teaching researching and consulting in the field of cultural administration and arts management
