

it strikes its other face AC. Here again, the ray from glass gets refracted into air but bends away from the normal towards the face BC. The ray FG is the ray that emerges out of the glass prism at the glass-air boundary face AC. The ray FG that emerges out of the glass prism at the face AC after successive refractions is the emergent ray (Fig. 42.1). Usually the emergent ray is bent towards the base (BC) of the prism as shown. The angle $\angle IHG$ between the incident ray DE (when extended) and the emergent ray FG, when produced backwards to meet at a point H, is known as the angle of deviation ($\angle \delta$).

MATERIALS REQUIRED

A glass prism, drawing board, white paper, adhesive tape or drawing pins, pins, a measuring scale, and a protractor.

PROCEDURE

1. Fix a white sheet of paper on a drawing board. Draw a thin line XY at the middle of the paper.
2. Draw a thin line NEN' normal (perpendicular) to the line XY at point of incidence E (say). Also draw a line DE making any angle, preferably

Fig. 42.1: Refraction of light through a glass prism. The incident ray DE enters the prism at point E on face AB, refracts into the prism, and emerges as an emergent ray FG at point G on face AC. The incident ray is extended backwards to point H, and the emergent ray is extended forwards to point G. The angle of deviation is marked as angle HIG.

Manual on Conservation of Soil and Water, 1954 Handbook of Experimental Economic Methodology Guillaume R. Fréchette, A. Schotter, 2015 The Handbook of Experimental Economic Methodology edited by Guillaume R Fr chette and Andrew Schotter aims to confront and debate the issues faced by the growing field of experimental economics For example as experimental work attempts to test theory it raises questions about the proper relationship between theory and experiments As experimental results are used to inform policy the utility of these results outside the lab is questioned and finally as experimental economics tries to integrate ideas from other disciplines like psychology and neuroscience the question of their proper place in the discipline of economics becomes less clear This book contains papers written by some of the most accomplished scholars working at the intersection of experimental behavioral and theoretical economics talking about methodology It is divided into four sections each of which features a set of papers and a set of comments on those papers The intention of the volume is to offer a place where ideas about methodology could be discussed and even argued Some of the papers are contentious a healthy sign of a dynamic discipline while others lay out a vision for how the authors think experimental economics should be pursued This exciting and illuminating collection of papers brings light to a topic at the core of experimental economics Researchers from a broad range of fields will benefit from the exploration of these important questions Handbook of Experimental Development Economics Utteeyo Dasgupta, Pushkar traits and basic cognitive processes offer a set of coherent explanatory constructs in economic behavior Given the debate on preference invariance and behavioral consistency across contexts and domains the papers in this topic shed light on the existence and effect of stable sets of idiosyncratic features on economic decision making While the effects of personality and cognition on economic decisions remain under explored the papers contributed in this topic offer more than a stimulus for further research The general message could be that personality and cognitive processes offer the stable idiosyncratic ground on which individual decisions are made Economic Problems of Underdeveloped Areas United States.
