Property in East Central Europe Hannes Siegrist, Dietmar Müller, 2014-11-01 Property is a complex phenomenon comprising cultural social and legal rules During the twentieth century property rights in land suffered massive interference in Central and Eastern Europe The promise of universal and formally equal rights of land ownership ensuring predictability of social processes and individual autonomy was largely not fulfilled The national appropriation of property in the interwar period and the communist era represent an onerous legacy for the postcommunist re construction of a liberal individualist property regime However as the scholars in this collection show after the demise of communism in Eastern Europe property is again a major factor in shaping individual identity and in providing the political order and culture with a foundational institution This volume analyzes both historical and contemporary forms of land ownership in Poland Romania and Yugoslavia in a multidisciplinary framework including economic history legal and political studies and social anthropology conceptual problems whether recently introduced terms such as alternative globalization and socialist proto globalization are plausible for interpreting state socialist globalization Special attention is paid to the study of continuities and discontinuities in the process of globalization in East Central Europe which is a key issue in current debates This requires a long term perspective so the study covers not only the decades before 1989 but also subsequent developments In doing so the book attempts to find a balance between old and new mainstream interpretations it recognises that East Central European societies experienced considerable globalization during the state socialist era however based on empirical findings instead of alternative or proto globalization the book suggests other notions to conceptualise this process including fragmentation selectivity and unevenness Thus the proposed understanding could also contribute to discussions on globalization beyond East Central Europe
