Hans Vredeman de Vries and the Artes Mechanicae Revisited Piet Lombaerde,2005 In this publication attention is devoted to the technical aspects in the work of Hans Vredeman de Vries Throughout his long career he has perfected his skills as a painter architect fortification engineer and hydraulic engineer Those technical aspects are considered not so much as discrete characteristics but rather as a particular way in which this late sixteenth century artist from the Low Countries typically dealt with a number of disciplines of the technical and applied arts Indeed from a predominantly traditional approach to his work too much emphasis has until now been placed on his highly personal contribution to the dissemination of ornamental elements whereby typical Renaissance characteristics such as technical innovation and engineering are relegated to the background During Hans Vredeman de Vries s lifetime attempts began to be made to define the arts and the sciences Defining the demarcation criteria of the sciences would continue to gain in importance especially at the beginning of the seventeenth century With his work Vredeman de Vries raised Architectura together with all its technical acquisitions to the level of both the Artes and the Scienciae Attempts were even made to establish some kind of hierarchy Yet the artist never strictly separated fine and applied arts nor did he explicitly distinguish between theory and practice It was the intention of Vredeman de Vries to aim towards an equilibrium between the sciences and the arts A team of thirteen distinguished art and architectural historians from North America Germany the Netherlands and Belgium focus upon Vredeman de Vries s diverse manifestations of knowledge urbanism fortification works hydraulics interior decoration architecture its practical and technical aspects inlay work and furniture tapestry and the use of scientific instruments One author points out that the similarity between such technical practices and the structure of for example sixteenth century rhetorical practices forces us to consider Vredeman de Vries not simply as an architect an engineer or a designer but above all as an experimenter in multiple disciplines and various fields

Heiner Borggrefe,2005    Landscape and the Visual Hermeneutics of Place, 1500-1700 Karl A.E. Enenkel,Walter Melion,2020-12-29 This volume examines the image based methods of interpretation that pictorial and literary landscapists employed between 1500 and 1700 The seventeen essays ask how landscape construed as the description of place in image and or text more than merely inviting close viewing was often seen to call for interpretation or better for the application of a method or principle of interpretation Contributors Boudewijn Bakker William M Barton Stijn Bussels Reindert Falkenburg Margaret Goehring Andrew Hui Sarah McPhee Luke Morgan Shelley Perlove Kathleen P Long Lukas Reddemann Denis Ribouillault Paul J Smith Troy Tower and Michel Weemans    The Anthropomorphic Lens Walter Melion,Bret Rothstein,Michel Weemans,2014-11-06 Anthropomorphism the projection of the human form onto the every aspect of the world closely relates to early modern notions of analogy and microcosm What had been construed in Antiquity as a ready metaphor for the order of creation was reworked into a complex system relating the human body to the body of the world

Numerous books and images cosmological diagrams illustrated treatises of botany and zoology maps alphabets collections of ornaments architectural essays are entirely constructed on the anthropomorphic analogy Exploring the complexities inherent in such work the interdisciplinary essays in this volume address how the anthropomorphic model is fraught with contradictions and tensions between magical and rational speculative and practical thought Contributors include Pamela Brekka Anne Laure van Bruaene Ralph Dekoninck Agn s Guiderdoni Christopher P Heuer Sarah Kyle Walter S Melion Christina Normore Elizabeth Petcu Bertrand Prevost Bret Rothstein Paul Smith Miya Tokumitsu Michel Weemans and Elke Werner

The City Rehearsed , Innovation and Experience in the Early Baroque in the Southern Netherlands Piet Lombaerde, 2008 During the sixteenth century Antwerp was at the forefront of the Renaissance north of the Alps Not only a new architectural style flourished in the Antwerp metropolis but at the end of the sixteenth century sciences such as mathematics optics geometry and perspective became more and more important They helped to redefine architecture and the other fine arts on a more scientific base Their introduction in the arts at the beginning of the seventeenth century lead to new experiences applications and even innovations in architecture The Jesuit Order played a very crucial rule in this process The realization of their new church in the centre of the city of Antwerp became one of the first attempts to bring together the applications of all those new ideas in one total project Paintings by Peter Paul Rubens and sculptures by Hieronymus Duquenoy Artus Quellinus etc were participating in one of the first Early Baroque architectural realizations in the Low Countries The Jesuit Church of Antwerp actually the St Carolus Borromeus Church was designed by Francois d Aguilon a scientist and architect of the Jesuit Order His publication Opticorum Libri sex on optics and on the reflection of light was edited by the Officina Plantiniana in 1613 the same year he started his project for the church This scientific and theoretical work helps us to understand the new experiences with light and space he experimented with It is the aim of this publication to bring together researchers to confront the results of their studies about the interpretation of the facade of this Counter Reformation church the phenomenon of diffuse light created by reflection and refraction on marble statues pillars and multiple ornaments the combination of linear and parallel perspective applications the sacral and social use of space the signification of the facade and towers as parts of a perspective scene in the city landscape and the relationship of Rubens s paintings with the Baroque interior Special attention is also devoted to the School of Mathematics installed in Antwerp by the Jesuits at that time The central question will be whether we can conclude that at the beginning of the seventeenth century the innovative sense of creating a new architecture so typical for the sixteenth century in Antwerp still persisted in this city during the early seventeenth century and even lead to a new interpretation of architectural space in
