through the lens of drawing this succinct survey is organized around three watershed moments in the artist's practice. It begins with examples of Darboven's Konstruktion drawings, abstract works based in transversal and mirroring strategies made during her two-year stay in New York in the late 1960s. The next section maps how Darboven adapted her drawing practice into formulas that calculate specific dates and durations into a single number, which the artist represented as anything from a series of calligraphic lines to a set of consecutively drawn boxes. The book concludes with a close look at Inventions that Have Changed Our World, an installation from 1996 that documents each day of the twentieth century according to Darboven's formulas and assigns an inventor ranging from Johannes Gutenberg to the Wright brothers to represent each of the century's ten decades. This engaging overview highlights how Darboven's work offers a deeply idiosyncratic accounting of art and life that challenges time as a linear and objective measure.

Hanne Darboven's Kulturgeschichte 1880–1983 Cultural History 1880–1983 is an overwhelming and encyclopedic installation consisting of 1,590 works on paper and 19 sculptural objects. The work weaves together cultural, social, and historical references. The panels are sequenced and grouped with the groups then juxtaposed in arrangements that often seem little more than chance associations.
