Rehumanizing Muslim Subjectivities Aroosa Kanwal,2024-01-31 Rehumanizing Muslim Subjectivities Postcolonial Geographies Postcolonial Ethics is a timely and urgent monograph allowing us to imagine what it feels like to be the victim of genocide abuse dehumanization torture and violence something which many Muslims in Palestine Kashmir Pakistan Myanmar Syria Iraq and China have to endure Most importantly the book emphasizes the continued relevance of creative literature's potential to intervene in and transform our understanding of a conceptual and political field as well as advanced technologies of power and domination. The book makes a substantial theoretical contribution by drawing on wide ranging angles and dimensions of contemporary drone warfare and its related catastrophes, postcolonial ethics in relation to the thanatopolitics of slow violence, dehumanization and the politics of death. Against the backdrop of such institutionalized and diverse acts of violence committed against Muslim communities, I call the postcolonial Muslim world geographies of dehumanization. The book investigates how ongoing legacies of contemporary forms of injustice and denial of subjecthood are represented, staged and challenged in a range of postcolonial anglophone Muslim texts, thereby questioning the idea of postcolonial ethics. One of the selling points of this book is the chapters on fictional representations by Muslim Myanmar and Uyghur writers, as to the best of my knowledge, no critical work or single authored book is available on Myanmar and Uyghur literature to date.

Understanding Torture John Parry, 2011-02-16 John Parry's Understanding Torture is an important contribution to our understanding of how torture fits within the practices and beliefs of the modern state. His juxtaposition of the often indeterminate nature of the law of torture with the very specific state practices of torture is both startling and revealing. Paul W. Kahn is Robert W. Winner Professor of Law and the Humanities at Yale Law School and author of Sacred Violence. Parry is effective in building, deploying and supporting his argument that the law does not provide effective protections against torture, but also that the law is in itself constitutive of a political order in which torture is employed to create and to destroy or re-create political identities. Margaret Satterthwaite, Faculty Director of the Center for Human Rights and Global Justice and Associate Professor of Clinical Law, NYU School of Law, says: "A beautifully crafted, convincingly argued book that does not shy away from addressing the legal and ethical complexities of torture in the modern world. In a field that all too often produces simple or superficial responses to what has become an increasingly challenging issue, Understanding Torture stands out as a sophisticated and intellectually responsible work." Ruth Miller, Associate Professor of History, University of Massachusetts Boston, says: "Prohibiting torture will not end it. In Understanding Torture, John T. Parry explains that torture is already a normal part of the state coercive apparatus. Torture is about dominating the victim for a variety of purposes, including public order, control of racial, ethnic and religious minorities, and critically, domination for the sake of domination. Seen in this way, Abu Ghraib sits on a continuum with contemporary police violence in U.S. cities, violent repression of racial minorities throughout U.S. history, and the exercise of power in a variety of political, social and interpersonal contexts. Creating a separate category for an intentionally narrow set of practices labeled and banned as torture, Parry argues, serves to normalize and legitimate the remaining practices that are not torture. Consequently, we must question the hope that law can play an important role in regulating state violence. No one who reads this book can fail to understand the centrality of torture in modern law, politics and governance." John T. Parry is Professor of Law at Lewis Clark Law School.
