Capital, Commodity, and English Language Teaching William Simpson, 2022-07-28 Capital, Commodity, and English Language Teaching illustrates how the drive for profit in commercial ELT affects the manner in which language is taught. The book looks at education as a form of production and asks how lessons are produced and how the production of profit in addition to the production of the lesson affects the operation of educational institutions and their stakeholders. Simpson delivers a theoretically rigorous conception of capital and builds from this an investigation into how the circulation of capital for profit interrelates with the teaching of language. Simpson discusses ELT at both a global level in discussion of the ELT industry in the UK, the US, Ireland, Canada, Japan, Spain and transnationally online as well as at a more local level where finer detailed descriptions of the work lives of those within the Japanese eikaiwa ELT industry are given. Drawing on a synthesis of Marxist and Bourdieusian theory, the book outlines a dialectical approach to understanding capital and to understanding how the drive for profit and language education interrelate with one another. Simpson concludes by showing how such an approach might open up areas for further research in a number of contexts across the globe as well as in light of the Covid-19 pandemic. Providing a model for addressing global issues of ELT, this book is of interest to advanced students, scholars and professionals within applied linguistics, TESOL, sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology, language economics and related areas.

developments in ELT Culture and Identity through English as a Lingua Franca Will Baker, 2015-07-01 The use of English as a global lingua franca has given rise to new challenges and approaches in our understanding of language and communication One area where ELF English as a lingua franca studies both from an empirical and theoretical orientation have the potential for significant developments is in our understanding of the relationships between language culture and identity ELF challenges traditional assumptions concerning the purported inexorable link between a language and a culture Due to the multitude of users and contexts of ELF communication the supposed language culture and identity correlation often conceived at the national level appears simplistic and naïve However it is equally naïve to assume that ELF is a culturally and identity neutral form of communication All communication involves participants purposes contexts and histories none of which are neutral Thus we need new approaches to understanding the relationship between language culture and identity which are able to account for the multifarious and dynamic nature of ELF communication
